Woman Bares Fantastic Death Plot In Russia

REVEALS PLAN TO KILL BOTH LENIN, STALIN

STORY MEETS DENIALS

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Calmly and dispassionately, a 52-year-old woman revolutionary stood before the judge in Soviet Russia's treason trial today and told of a plot to kill Lenin and Stalin.

She was Varvara Nikolaevna Yakovleva, former finance commissar of the Republic of Russia and the first woman to hold an official post in the soviet regime.

Blames Ex-Editor.

Brought from dread Lubyanka prison to testify, Mme. Yakovleva laid the plot at the door of Nikolai Bukharin, once-famous editor and ideologist, now one of 21 former high officials facing death for their admissions of a "Trotskyist" conspiracy.

"I was a member of Bukharin's group of 1918," she said. "In that year I attended a meeting of his followers at which a resolution was presented proposing the arrest of Lenin and Stalin.

"The resolution stated that if necessary, both should be destroyed."

Questioned by Presiding Justice Vassily Ulrich, Mme. Yakovleva said Bukharin ordered the resolution expunged from the records of the meeting.

"He told me later in private that he was the author of the resolution," she said. "He believed it could be carried out and had the support of Leon Trotsky.

Tells of 'Agreement.'

"Bukharin told me that Trotsky Zinoviev and Kameney (recently executed in Stalin's purge) had agreed upon the necessity of arresting and possibly destroying both Lenin and Stalin."

Called back to the stand, Bukharin passed the lie direct to Mme. Yakovleva. Questioned by Prose-

Pretty Girl, Pretty Trophies

ANNUAL RELAYS CAMPAIGN ON

'Bigger and Better' Slogan of Committee Again; Trophies More Elaborate.

Preparations for the Mansfield Relays started to take definite shape today, with all efforts directed toward making the interscholastic field and track carnival the greatest in its 12-year history.

Evidence of greater interest in the event, to be staged at Stadium field April 23, is already apparent.

More than 1,600 invitations have been extended to schools in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky and Michigan, and if only a small fraction accepted, a new entry record is certain.

Judging from inquiries received from out-of-state schools, the entry will be bolstered considerable from neighboring states.

One of the most elaborate arrays of trophies ever presented at a schoolboy trackfest will be awarded in this year's affair.

The trophies and belt buckles, which will be presented to the individual winners this year instead of medals, are stamped with a specially-designed Mansfield Relays' crest.

The trophies are now on display

JURY SELECTED

Lima Ready For 'Love Triangle' Murder Trial.

LIMA —(INS)— The jury was seated tentatively today in the first degree murder trial of William Reneau, 37, charged with the "love triangle" slaying of Ray Truesdale, 32, over the affections of Iona Blair.

Reneau, a toolmaker, came here from Ottawa, Kans. Truesdale was shot and killed outside Miss Blair's residence here on Jan. 23.

NO SILK PANTS

Kennedy to Wear Tails When He Meets King Tomorrow.

LONDON—(INS)—It will be tails and a white tie for Joseph P. Kennedy when he presents his credentials to King George as new American ambassador to Britain tomorrow.

BLOODHOUND LOSES WAY

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Reversing the usual procedure, police today were on the trail of a bloodhound. Mrs Rebecca McFadden's bloodhound so far forgot his instincts as to get lost.

NATIONAL USED CAR EXCHANGE WEEK

Wise Men Buy When Prices Are Lowest

Never before have the automobile dealers been able to offer such a wide selection of modern used cars at rock bottom prices, as are being offered during National Used Car Exchange Week. It is a golden opportunity to buy a better car.

If your present car is unsafe, worn-out, unreliable, without modern safety brakes, safety glass, large tires, and many other modern features, why not take advantage of the many values offered during this national event and trade for a later car?

See any dealer displaying the above sign.

EIGHT CALLED

Shelby Man's Trial on Arson Charge Opens Today.

Eight witnesses had been subpoenaed today to testify in the arson trial of Hiram Littleton, 39, Shelby, which opened this morning in common pleas court.

Arraigned before Judge C. H. Huston, Littleton pleaded innocent to a grand jury indictment returned against him two months ago.

He is accused of starting a fire which caused damage estimated at nearly $200 at the Shelby jail while he was held there on an intoxication charge last October.

Among the witnesses called were Sheriff J. E. Sandusky of Franklin county, representing the state fire marshall's office; Chief of Police Leroy Coffey of Shelby, Eugene Shull, Shelby fire chief; and Walter Benedict and William Ewalt, Shelby policemen.

Recover Stolen Police Car With Loot of Hold-up

SHELBY—The blotter at the Shelby police station told an embarrassing tale today.

Not only was the city's police cruiser stolen early today, but loot taken from a filling station was found in the car when it was recovered by Marion officers.

Here's the situation: Shortly after midnight, Patrolman Walter Benedict, detailed to the car, parked the cruiser in the city garage in the rear of the police station as he went to lunch. The car was gone when he returned.

The theft report was broadcast and Marion police recovered it shortly afterward. The driver, a youth about 17, escaped as police drove up to question him.

BOARD ELECTS

Balliet Heads County Election Office For 4th Term.

The Richland county board of elections re-elected George C. Balliet, Mansfield, chairman and reappointed Arliss F. Porter clerk for two-year terms at the annual organization meeting Saturday at the courthouse.

Balliet, a Democrat, has headed the board for six years, while Porter, Republican, has been clerk for eight years. The board re-named Walter Underwood, Democrat, as deputy clerk for two years.

Two members of the board, George Williams and Fred L. Bricker, both of Shelby, re-named last week by Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, began four-year term, and Bricker, Democrat, began his second.

The terms of Balliet and W. M. Ferguson, other two board members, do not expire until 1940.

SOLVES MYSTERY

Wing Spar Indicates Payroll Plane Fell Into Sea.

MANILA —(INS)— Indicating he had crashed into the sea with a $30,000 payroll, a wing spar floating near Calauag today was identified as part of Burton Hall's missing plane.

Hall disappeared last Monday while flying the payroll to a mine at Paracale, 120 miles south of Manila. He was employed by the Philippine Aerial Taxi company, and was flying a Stinson cabin plane.

BURY MAHAFFEY TOMORROW

WEST UNION—(INS)—William F. (Bud) Mahaffey, 62, baseball player with Philadelphia in the National league from 1900 to 1904 will be buried tomorrow following funeral service at his home at nearby Peebles.

FATHER OF 2 MANSFIELDERS ON PLANE DIES

SEE OBJECT ON MOUNTAIN

Building and Loan Official Stricken Without Learning of Children's Fate.

While hope was renewed today in California that the lost TWA luxury plane carrying nine persons may be found, plans were being made in Mansfield for the funeral of Jay Neil Dirlam, father of two of the passengers, who died at 5 p. m. Sunday without knowing of the disaster which overtook his children.

Mr. Dirlam was stricken with a heart attack a week ago. At that time word of his serious illness was sent to J. Tracy Dirlam, 21, and Mary Lou Dirlam, 19, students at Leland Stanford, at Palo Alta, Calif.

They decided to take a plane home because of the time element involved, and it was on this trip, a few hours out of San Francisco, that the big airliner disappeared somewhere in the high Sierras last Tuesday night. Land and air searching parties have been combing the country since then without a trace of the ship.

TWA Offers Reward.

Today Jack Frye, president of Transcontinental and Western Airways, offered a reward of $1,000 to any person who can lead an official of the company to the lost plane.

Hope was renewed when a searching party left at dawn today for Goat mountain, where a rancher reported that he had seen an object from a distance that resembled an airplane high on the mountain near his home and 60 miles east of Frenso.

Capt. John Sears, a retired fireman, sent word of his discovery to Fresno late last night, according to United Press dispatches.

There was a break in the heavy clouds that have obscured the mountains for days, Sears said, and he saw the object lying on the mountainside 1,500 feet above Bass lake.

Densely Wooded Area.

It resembled an airplane that was intact, he said. Although the area is densely wooded, the airplane seemed to be outlined against the deep mountain snows, on which 20 inches have fallen since the plane disappeared while on a flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

The mountain is more than 60 miles east of Fresno. It is about six miles northeast of a power house, where ranchers said they heard the plane pass about 15 minutes after Pilot John Graves

On Screen and Off, This West Gal is Always Same-Words, Gestures, Clothes

You'll Find She Uses Her Head as Effectively as Her Hips.

By JANE WILLIAMS

MAE WEST is Mae West off and on the screen, 24 hours a day, and if there are scattered moments when she isn't—only the gal of the undulating hips knows. And maybe Timony.

But talk to her for awhile and you are convinced of one thing—she uses her head quite as effectively as her hips Forget all that you've read about her being "an entirely different person" off the screen, and we'll start from scratch to sum up the personality and showmanship of a woman who makes one entertainment feature a year, but earns more money than any other player in Hollywood.

Before you meet her you are prepared for everything and anything—except what you find. And that is the identical personality and makeup that you see on the screen. She never steps out of character. She wears the same kind of clothes off the screen as on. She slurs her words and has the same gestures in her off-screen conversation.

When she stepped off the train in Cleveland last Friday morning at 7:30, she was wearing her gorgeous hair of Chinese ivory color, her two-inch eyelashes, a tight fitting gown of beige wool, a short sable jacket and a big hat. A very frank Cleveland newspaper woman asked: "Why the screen get-up?" The screen star waved her diamond studded hands toward the thousand or more people who came to see her, and said simply:

"They expected it."

In her dressing room back stage at the Palace theater in Cleveland, where she is appearing for a week, we sat down to talk, just the two of us, and I thought "Now she can be herself and she'll take down her back hair." But I guessed wrong.

Mae West

That carefully arranged hair never turned a curl in three hours.

She was wearing a long, trailing, beflounced skirt of black taffeta, which rustled in a Gay Nineties whisper as she walked. Over it was a negligee coat of baby blue ostrich feathers. No lounging pajamas for this "Belle of the Nineties." Her synthetic eyelashes are much longer than any you've seen anywhere, and her strangely lovely eyes, which are the gray of a wild dove's breast, were heightened by deep shadows of gray eye shadow.

Her skin is the most exquisite I've ever seen. It is without a trace of pores, wrinkles or blemishes and is the color of whole milk. She wears no rouge except on her lips. The next time you

Hotel On Fire; Mansfield Travelers Sleep Right On

A fire in a 44-story hotel, with fire sirens and bells roaring up from the sidewalks below, and corridors filled with smoke, isn't exactly conducive to sound sleep, but it didn't bother Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lewis, 10 Glenwood boulevard, who were on the 15th floor of the Hotel New Yorker Sunday when flames roared up the ventilator shaft and routed guests from their rooms.

They had a room on the 15th floor, but spent a restless night. Shortly after 4 a. m. Sunday they were awakened by the raucous sound of fire sirens and bells coming up from the street below.

'What's the Fuss?'

Mr. Lewis opened the door into the corridor and saw that it was filled with smoke. Down the hall, he could see a fireman cutting away a door, and there was the sound of water, and the roar of flames

He asked the firemen what the "fuss" was about, and was told that flames were roaring up a ventilator shaft beside the elevator shaft, but that the hotel was fireproof and there was nothing to worry about. So the Mansfield man went back to his room, and he and Mrs. Lewis settled down and went soundly to sleep.

"There wasn't anything to get excited about," he told a News-Journal representative this morn-

CLOSED AGAIN

Hospital's Private Pavilion Under Smallpox Quarantine.

For the second time in the past two months, a part of the General hospital today was under quarantine, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner said.

A case of smallpox was found in the private pavilion on the main floor of the building Saturday, Dr. Rehder said, and 10 patients in that section of the hospital had been quarantined.

The victim, Wilford Ebinger, 12, of 478 Park avenue west, was removed to his home and placed under quarantine there. Only persons who have been vaccinated against the disease are permitted to visit the pavilion, the commissioner said. Ebinger was admitted to the hospital Tuesday.

Dr Rehder said the quarantine would be in effect only until all contacts had been traced. Meanwhile the other patients in the pavilion were under observation.

Marriage 'Touts' Face Jail

NEWPORT, Ky.—(AP)—"Marriage touts" are causing a traffic problem and Police Chief Leo Livingston ordered something done about it.

The ballyhoo men for justices of the peace in this "Gretna Green" jump aboard automobiles as they cross the Ohio river bridges from Cincinnati, Livingston said, and cry their praises of matrimonial services even though the motorists insist they're not altar-bound.

Livingston said the "touts" would be charged with obstructing traffic.

MASS BURIALS HELD TODAY FOR FLOOD VICTIMS

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—Mass funerals were held today for the many scores who died in the southern California flood. The mourners passed along streets half buried in mud and debris, where groups of grim and weary men still searched for the missing, five days after the disaster.

There were 139 persons listed as dead in the 30,000 square mile area and it was estimated that 200 or more had died.

To keep out sightseers and looters during the rehabilitation work, national guardsmen were on patrol at Anaheim; sheriff's men blocked the roads in San Bernardino county; mounted posses guarded the banks of Lytle creek and Santa Ana river in several counties.

Nine More Dead.

Nine more men were added to the death list last night when a haggard party of two women and four men emerged from Tujunga canyon, and reported that nine of their companions had been drowned when a torrent swept down upon a construction camp 50 miles northwest of Los Angeles. For five days the surviving six had been without food. They had lived on water and coffee. A rumor of their plight had preceded them here and three boys climbed a precipitous trail to assist them. The boys carried one of the survivors, who is a paralytic.

There was a funeral for 18 today at Anaheim. Most of them were drowned in the Atwood and La Jolla area nearby, when the Santa Ana river left its banks.

LAUNCHES DRIVE

University Club Prepares For Visit of Noted Explorer.

Sale of tickets for the illustrated lecture which will be given in Mansfield Friday night by Mrs. Martin Johnson, noted explorer, was launched today by the University club, sponsor of Mrs. Johnson's appearance here.

Tickets for the evening lecture at Senior high school auditorium may be obtained from any University club member at Tawse's pharmacy and Bates' Candy shoppe. Student tickets for a matinee lecture and motion picture at 3 30 p. m. Friday can be obtained through the schools

As the world's most famous woman explorer, Mrs. Johnson is continuing the work of her late husband in the fields of exploration and photography. Her lecture,entitled "Jungles Calling," will be illustrated by motion pictures filmed in Africa and Borneo by Mrs. Johnson and her husband who was killed more than a year ago in a California plane crash.

BATTLES DEATH

Mother Who Gave Birth to Siamese Twins, Given Chance.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Mrs. Catherine Conlon, wife of a bus conductor, was given a fighting chance for recovery today after she gave birth to triplets, two of them Siamese twins and all born dead.

CALLS GRAFT QUIZ WITNESS A 'SCHEMER'

ASKS 'HOT-MIX' STUDY

Wants Professorial Board to Present Early Report on Road Materials.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Governor Martin L. Davey today denounced Harry A. Sparks, highway department engineer who told the senate graft investigating committee that exorbitant prices were paid for bituminous road material, as a "scheming politician."

The governor last week ordered Highway Director John Jaster, jr., to abolish Sparks' position. However, Sparks has not been dismissed yet.

The governor also asked the professional board of engineers, which he created to investigate the highway department several months ago, to concentrate its study "on the subject of hot and cold mix highway projects."

Urges Speedy Report.

In a letter to Prof. C. T. Morris, chairman of the committee, the governor asked that the report on this subject be made available as soon as possible.

Gov. Davey again charged that Sparks had not acted in good faith when he testified before the senate committee. He said that although Sparks was closely identified with the hot and cold mix road projects, "he never told any highway department official" that he thought the estimates were too high until after the 1937 work was completed.

"He never voiced a criticism in the department until weeks after the Scripps-Howard newspapers had started their vicious attacks on the highway department," Gov. Davey wrote.

Charges Collusion.

"He had been in collusion with the Scripps-Howard newspapers for many weeks before he mentioned the subject to an official of the department. He sneaked out the back door to connive with the Scripps-Howard papers in their smearing campaign.

"This man who has been pictured as a pure minded citizen, who

Kidnaped Levine Boy Alive, Note To Father Indicates

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(AP)—Murray Levine, father of kidnaper 12-year-old Peter Levine, said today that he believed his son was still alive, despite continued failure to make actual contact with the abductors. He also said he believed he was dealing with the true kidnapers.

Commenting on the last ransom note demanding $30,000, but declining to say when he received it, Levine said:

"With the last note there was some indication my boy was alive, and that I was dealing with the right party."

He would not say what the "indication" was. Presumably, he referred to a note in the boy's handwriting, in which Peter reportedly begged his father:

"Please give the men the money. I have a bad cold."

The haggard father, in his first extended interview with newspaper reporters who have yielded to his request to remain away from the Levine home, said there had been "no conflict at any time" with the kidnapers.

DAVIS TO RUN

Pennsy Senator Ends Speculation On Governor's Chair.

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— Senator James J. Davis, (R-Pa.) announced today he would be a candidate for re-election.

The senator, who rose from a steel mill puddler to national prominence in the political scene, thus ended speculation over whether he would seek a third term in the senate or toss his hat into the ring for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

A New Type Dress and A New Writer Make Initial Bows In Today's Paper

IF YOU started reading at the top of the page, by the time you got down to this you probably had already realized what a difference the new type in The News-Journal makes. From front page to back, the paper appears today in its new "dress," Intertype Regal, eight-point letters on an eight and one-half point line.

Not only are the individual letters and characters larger, but the space between lines is larger. So your eyes have much less work to do in reading the paper.

Saturday we showed the old type and the new, side by side. Today, none of the old type appears, and there's no chance for comparison. But when you've finished reading today's paper, you'll find that you did it much easier, and with much less eye strain.

So it's "Farewell to the Old," and "Greetings to the New"—and we know you'll like it.

ALONG with The News-Journal's new type, a new writer makes his bow in The News-Journal today. He's Westbrook Pegler, and his first column appears on the editorial page of today's paper.

It happens that Pegler writes today about Hollywood. Tomorrow, he may write something about China or Japan or the British cabinet or women's hats.

That's the kind of an assignment he has—to write about what he pleases. And his success since he has started on this assignment—more than a hundred papers use Pegler's column—is conclusive proof that he writes interestingly and with definite convictions. They may agree with the opinions of the paper in which his column appears, but just as often they won't.

But whether you agree with Pegler or not, you'll like him.

Read Pegler's first column on the editorial page today—and daily hereafter.

If He Can't Be Trusted Don't Marry

By VIRGINIA LEE

If a girl cannot trust the man she is planning to marry, and if he may later endanger her health, and maybe life, by going to places where he may catch a social disease, he certainly isn't to be considered a prize, is he?

That is your answer, Ann D. I can understand how you "hate him in one way and love him in another." One cannot stop loving a person just as one would turn off a water spigot to stop the flow, but you must be very disappointed in this young man, and I don't wonder you "don't feel the same toward him." I don't see how you can "trust and believe in him any more."

I am afraid your heart will ache and your faith in men be shaken by this boy's actions, but I feel you will be much happier in the long run if you break off your love affair with him and find a man who is more trustworthy.

F. R. C.: I answered your previous letter, F. R. C. You can hardly blame your wife for wanting to be with her parents if they are old and need her, and especially if she herself is ill. And yet, I realize how very hard it is on you to have her and your sweet daughter so far away.

Your wife might feel very strange and lonely in a hospital, even if she were near you.

It is a problem that no outsider can answer, really. It always seems to me that a wife's place is by her husband's side and making a home for him. And yet, it might be that your wife is right in staying with her parents right now.

In the answer I previously gave you, and which you doubtless have seen before now, I advised you to be patient for a while, let things go and do your part in writing and sending money. If, however, you are convinced in time that your wife means never to come back to you, you have a right to tell her you want a divorce. You do not want this, I take it, as you seem so fond of your wife and daughter. I very sincerely hope you will not lose them. It is certainly sad that your wife is jealous of you. You never gave her any cause to be, I suppose, even unintentionally?

A CONSTANT READER: Is the young man with whom you are so desperately in love a "nice" boy to take advantage of your strong feeling for him to "try you out"? I am not so sure he is. In fact, I think it was a mean trick. If he has any brains at all and any real feeling for anyone besides himself, he must know that you would be likely to let him go further than you would anyone else because you care so much.

If he says anything more about the "nice" question, you might tell him that and see what he says. You know you are a good girl, and so rest on that fact, no matter what he seems to think. Too bad love makes you so blind.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

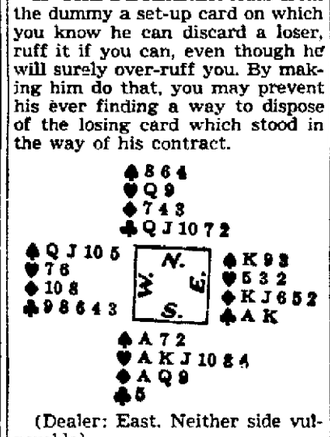
"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE HIM OVER-RUFF

IF THE DECLARER leads from the dummy a set-up card on which you know he can discard a loser, ruff it if you can, even though he will surely over-ruff you. By making him do that, you may prevent his ever finding a way to dispose of the losing card which stood in the way of his contract.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable).

Here East started the bidding with 1-Diamond, South overcalled with 2-Hearts, West passed, North responded with 3-Clubs, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

In view of the bidding, West elected to lead his spade Q, rather than his partner's suit, and South won with the A. It appeared as if two spades would have to be lost, one club, and possibly only one diamond, in view of the bidding.

The declarer recided to give up his club loser at once, in the hope of ridding himself of a loser in diamonds, when the clubs were set up. When East won the trick with the K, two spades were cashed, and West then led the diamond 10. South won this with the Q, and then led a trump, winning in dummy with the 9. The club Q was next led, covered by East's A, and South ruffed. A heart was then led to the Q, and the club J led. East discarded a diamond and so did South, so that the contract was made. Had East ruffed with his trump, South would have had to over-ruff and he could not have gotten rid of his losing diamond.

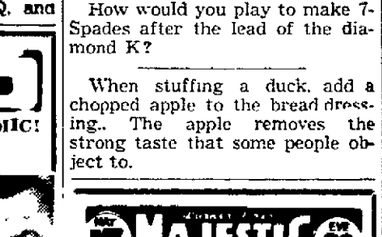
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable).

How would you play to make 7-Spades after the lead of the diamond K?

When stuffing a duck, add a chopped apple to the bread dressing. The apple removes the strong taste that some people object to.

—Beauty—

Make-Up, Hair Style Alters Looks

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

HOW DO you like your face? Does it seem to leave a lot to be desired? Maybe you've secretly envied the girl across the street with her lovely oval face, or your rival at Saturday night's dance who used her heart-shaped face to such good advantage. When mother was a girl, there was nothing to do but go on envying and keep on hoping that being a good cook would compensate in the end. That was the only thing the old-fashioned girl had to fall back on if she wasn't a natural beauty.

Now there are more subtle ways to compete. Hollywood has shown us that the correct application of makeup can make a star beautiful and glamorous, and that the wrong method can make the most gorgeous creature look like she was all set to haunt a house.

A famous makeup artist gave us some facts about faces. She said that cosmetics put on with a little knowledge can really give the effect of changing the shape of the face.

If you are the long face kind, then give it a buildup. Put on your cheek rouge near the eyes, working it up toward the temples, bringing a light shadow over the brows. This will make your face seem shorter. Use dark powder on your nose and chin, light powder on the temples and between the eyes, to pick up the downward lines.

The round plump type needs a different method but don't let that discourage you. Cut out rouge on your cheek bones, near the eyes, but blend it outward and upward toward the hairline, keeping the color far back. Use a dark powder on your throat, chin and around the outline of your face.

Another Little Trick.

Maybe you don't like to be a square face. Well there's a nice little deceptive trick to that one too Apply your rouge a little closer to your eye, smoothing it outward in a triangle shape, and not below the line of the nose. As in the round face, use a darker powder on the chin, throat and around the contours of the face.

And don't get morbid if you have glared at yourself in the mirror and seen an angular, hollowed cheek reflection. Here's how to put that one over. The rouge should be applied sparingly on the cheekbones, but put it on more heavily on the hollows underneath, bringing the color up to your ear and temple. Use a darker powder over the bridge of your nose and cheekbones, a lighter powder on your lower face.

This cheerful little earful ought to make us girls look a lot lovelier than we seem to ourselves. And don't worry, the makeup can fool the boy friend's candid camera.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Dicky's eyes widened as he looked around the sitting room of our suite at the Lansfield, and saw the lavish display of orchids and roses.

"I suppose this spells old Phil in a flamboyant mood," he said, and Mary chuckled gleefully.

"You rang the bell the very first shot, Uncle Dicky," she said. Then she shot a mischievous glance at me.

"Now aren't you glad we decided to dress?" she said. "Here we have 'what the well-dressed man should wear' in the flesh doing us honor."

"Very glad," I agreed, a bit absently, for the arrival of my husband had again reminded me of my misgivings concerning the discovery I had made that Philip Veritzen owned the hotel to which Mary and I had come for the duration of the rehearsals and production of my play.

Suspects Trouble.

"Something on your mind beside your very effective coiffure?" he drawled languidly.

"Nothing of any particular consequence," I returned as nonchalantly, but I managed a private little signal which told him that I wished to speak to him alone before he should leave use.

"Check!" he said with a grin, and I knew that he had caught my cue and was returning it. And then there was a knock at the door and two waiters came in with tables, linen, silver and china. They proceeded to lay a dinner table with the deftness and dispatch which was to be expected of them. When one of them disappeared for a minute and came back with an exquisite centerpiece of gardenias and St. Brigid anemones, a favorite combination of mine, I flashed an appreciative and affectionate glance at my husband

"How lovely of you, Dicky!" I murmured, knowing that Mary would be voluble enough for all of us

"I'll bet there's some dinner coming," she said at the end of her exclamations. "It will have to be to measure up to this"

"We aim to please, Darling," her uncle assured her, and when the meal was served I realized, with a warm feeling in my heart, that he had spared no pains to make the welcoming dinner to Mary and me, both of us nostalgic and nervous, a memorable thing which would make us forget everything but the delicious viands before us.

From the chilled melon balls, through the breast of guinea hen under glass, to the peach Melbas, every detail was perfect, and I felt ashamed of the qualm that my thrifty soul experienced when I tried to estimate the probable cost of Dicky's welcoming gesture.

Dicky Restless.

It was fully two hours after dinner before Mary went off to bed, unwittingly giving me my chance to confide to my husband my uneasiness concerning Philip Veritzen. Miss Whitlock, tactful, self-effacing, had gone to her room more than an hour earlier, and it was with mingled feelings of anxiety and anger that, during Mary's protracted stay afterward, I noticed my husband surreptitiously glancing more than once at the clock on the mantel, and heard his comment when his niece had finally given us good night.

"Whatever you have on your mind, old Dear," he said when Mary had closed the door of her room and we were left alone, "please spill it quickly. I'm all in. If I don't hit the hay pretty soon, I'll be carried off in an ambulance."

But his words did not have the ring of truth in them. There were no lines of fatigue in his face, although stark worry was mirrored in his eyes. Whatever his planned destination when he should leave me, it was not to 'hit the hay.' I would have wagered much on that premise.

THEATER

DOTS AND DASHES—Norma Shearer will croon an old Austrian lullaby in her new picture, "Marie Antoinette." And she'll sing it in German. . . . Former silent film stars, Pauline Garon, Ruth Clifford, Frank Mayo, and Harold Goodwin are playing bits in "Island In the Sky." . . . A make-up detail that required time for the Ritz brothers in preparing for their roles in "Kentucky Moonshine," was putting dirt under their fingernails, so they would be in character as mountaineers. . . . Norman Foster, only recently a popular leading man, is now directing films for 20th Century Fox. His most recent effort is Claire Trevor's "Walking Down Broadway." . . . Fred Allen, of radio fame, and star of "Sally, Irene, and Mary," at the Ohio, made his debut as an entertainer in the role of a juggler in a vaudeville house in Boston.

Singing and dancing stars furnish the hilarious fun in the new musical, "Thrill of a Lifetime," which opens at the Madison theater Tuesday for a two-day stand. The Yacht Club Boys, Johnny Downs, Eleanore Whitney, Judy Canova, Ben Blue, Betty Grable, Leif Erikson, and Larry Crabbe head the large cast. The story concerns a young playwright who runs a camp—Camp Romance, to be exact. He brings the Yacht Club Boys to the camp, believing that they are big producers who might put on his show. And then in rapid order the others move into the camp. And they all get a job when a real producer sees the show. Dorothy Lamour shows up for a special number, singing the title song of the picture. Smith Ballew, western screen star, appears in person at the Madison through today.

Fred Allen at Ohio.

Fred Allen, radio's "Town Hall Tonight" star, tops the large cast of "Sally, Irene, and Mary," showing at the Ohio. Allen plays the part of a theatrical agent who starts out to get three girls big jobs on Broadway. His efforts, however, are not so good, and they end up in the comparative comfort of manicure work. But they finally work out a scheme to put themselves on the stage. Others heading the cast are Alice Faye, Tony Martin, John Davis, Jimmy Durante, Gregory Ratoff, Louise Hovick, and Marjorie Weaver of "Second Honeymoon" fame.

Paul Muni and Bette Davis head the cast of the reissue of "Bordertown," opening at the Majestic theater Tuesday. The picture, suggested by Carroll Graham's best selling novel, is set in a resort town on the United States border. Two women play a vital part in the life of Muni, one a fiery adventuress, the other a rich and bored American society girl who takes a passing fancy to him. How he finally straightens things out forms an interesting story. Dick Powell in "The Singing Marine" completes the double feature program. Doris Weston, Lee Dixon, Hugh Herbert, Jane Darwell and Allen Jenkins head the supporting cast. "Penrod and Twin Brother," and a reissue of Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Blatto," are the features through today.

Emile Zola at Ritz.

One of the most notorious scandals in modern history supplies the motivation for "The Life of Emile Zola," which returns to Mansfield Tuesday at the Ritz theater. The scandal surrounds the conviction and imprisonment of Captain Alfred Dreyfus on Devil's Island, on a trumphed-up charge that he had sold important army secrets. Paul Muni plays the role of Emile Zola, French novelist, who believing in Dreyfus' innocence, attacks the powerful military hierarchy in an attempt to free the soldier. The second feature will be "Courage of the West," with Bob Baker, Lois January, J. Farrell MacDonald and Fuzzy Knight.

Salmon Can Be Used In Various Ways

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Dept. of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company

With Lent beginning March 2, the calendar will be dotted with special days of fast and abstinence which can be made into veritable feasts by the use of canned salmon. Salmon Week which is being observed March 4 to 12 offers the thrifty homemaker a timely opportunity to become acquainted with the excellent dietetic virtues of canned salmon and the many "different" delicious budget dishes which it makes possible.

This versatile sea-food is featured with the same success in simple sandwiches and elaborate company canapes; hot soups and frozen salads; nippy barbecues and mild a la king dishes. The recipes included in this calendar are all appropriate to serve for the main protein dish for either luncheon or supper menus.

Salmon Barbeque.

1 pound caned salmon
1 cup crushed potato chips
2 eggs (slightly beaten)
1 cup chili sauce
12 stuffed olives (sliced)

Mix salmon, potato chips and eggs. Form into patties. Roll in flour and brown in hot fat. Mix stuffed olives with chili sauce and place a generous spoonful of chili sauce between two salmon patties.

Stuffed Salmon Loaf.

2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 pound canned salmon
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 cup shrimps (cooked)

Combine bread crumbs, eggs, milk, salmon, seasonings and onion. Place half of the mixture in a buttered loaf pan, pressing down into pan firmly. Clean the shrimps and place a row of shrimps over the layer of salmon loaf. Cover with remaining salmon and bake in a 350° oven (moderate) for 40 minutes. Serve with tartar sauce.

Salmon Au Gratin.

1 pound canned salmon
1 small can mushrooms
1 cup white sauce
½ cup American cheese (grated)
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Flake the salmon. Prepare a medium white sauce and stir in the grated cheese. Cook until cheese is melted. Add the salmon, mushrooms and seasonings. Serve hot in macaroni nest.

Hearty Salmon Salad.

1 cup rice (cooked)
1 tablespoon onion (minced)
½ cup French dressing
1 pound canned salmon
Juice of one lemon
2 hard-cooked eggs (sliced)
3 pickles (chopped)
1 teaspoon parsley (chopped)

Marinate rice to which onion has been added, in French dressing. Combine remaining ingredients in order given. Arrange in mounds on lettuce beds. Garnish with pickles.

Salmon-Vegetable Casserole.

1 pound canned salmon (flaked)
1 cup lima beans (cooked)
1 cup tomatoes (cooked)
1 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Combine salmon, lima beans, tomatoes and ¼ cup crumbs. Place in individual casseroles. Top with remaining bread crumbs. Bake in a 350° oven for one-half hour.

Salmon Souffle.

½ cup tapioca
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
1 pound canned salmon
2 teaspoons parsley
4 eggs (separated)

Combine tapioca, seasonings, milk. Cook in double boiler for 5 minutes. Add salmon and parsley. Remove from fire and cool. Beat egg yolks until creamy. Add to salmon mixture. Finally fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Bake in a 325° oven for approximately one hour.

Why not a fleet of banana boats for a 12-year-old's birthday party? Stuff hallowed bananas with diced pineapple and peaches. Attach flags of variegated gum drops stuck on wooden picks. Let the sea be of shredded lettuce. Or fill the bananas with vanilla ice cream and sail them on a custard sea.

In preparing Welsh rabbits be careful not to over-cook them or they will become stringy.

Modern Hot Cross Buns

Lenten Observance Taxes Versatility of Housewives

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Restrictions that Lenten observances impose on meals are a challenge to the cook. But the housewife who prides herself on her table takes it in her stride.

HOT CROSS BUNS

1 yeast cake
1 cup milk, scalded and cooled to lukewarm
½ cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
4 cups flour
1 teaspoin cinnamon
¼ cup melted butter
1 cup chopped Brazil nuts

Crumble yeast cake into a bowl. Add milk and stir to dissolve yeast. Add sugar, salt and beaten egg. Mix flour with cinnamon and add half of this mixture to the first. Mix, then stir in rest of flour. Add melted butter and mix well. Turn out on floured board and knead until dough is smooth. Put in a bowl. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Turn on floured board, knead in Brazil nuts until well distributed. Form into buns. Arrange on a greased baking sheet. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Brush buns with egg yolk, which has been diluted with water and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees F., until light brown. Remove from oven and cool. Make a cross on top of each bun with confectioners' frosting, made by mixing confectioners' sugar with enough water to make a thick, smooth paste.

If she can't serve meat she makes a dish of creamed eggs, brightened with green pepper, sprinkled with paprika, and garnished with parsley. It pleases the eye and the palate and it fills the men folks' stomachs as well as a steak would have.

For another dinner it may be broiled mushrooms, big round chunks of goodness perched on golden slices of toast. Squeeze a little lemon juice on them for tratness and you couldn't ask for a better Lenten "meat."

Consider The Cheeses.

The possibilities are not restricted by any means. There are many combinations to be made with macaroni or noodles as a base, cheese, tomato sauce and vegetables for the variations. There are so many possibilities for variety in just cheese itself, so many different flavors and colors from mild cottage cheese and its aristocratic sister, cream cheese, to the pungent vigor of Roquefort or gorgonzola.

Nuts, too, are a sturdy means of varying Lenten dishes. Add peanuts, almonds or pecans to the savory sauce served with broccoli, onions, celery, turnips, spinach or asparagus. Mix more nuts into salads and vegetables before they are cooked.

Main Dish Suggestions.

Here are some added menu changes:

Scoop out the centers of tomatoes. Half fill them with a savory stuffing or corn and top them with uncooked eggs. Bake until the eggs have "set." (About twenty minutes.)

Add half cup of grated cheese to a cup and a half of white sauce. Add four sliced hard-cooked eggs, a cup of cooked corn and half a cup of rice, noodles or macaroni. Bake the combination for fifteen minutes in a shallow buttered baking dish.

Add chopped pickles, chili sauce, browned mushrooms, cooked vegetables, bits of fish, nuts or cheese to scrambled eggs—or spread any of them over the top of an omelet when you are ready to fold it over.

Select two one-pound slices of fish steak. Cover one slice with a thin layer of savory stuffing to which some chopped sweet pickles have been added. Cover with the other slice and sprinkle with melted butter and a little chili sauce or catsup. Bake for fifty minutes in a moderate oven.

March Menus Include Favorites

Puffy Omelet With Bacon

4 slices bacon
4 egg whites, beaten
4 egg yolks, beaten
¼ cup cold water
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon celery salt

Lay bacon strips on a cold frying pan. Heat slowly and pour off excess fat as soon as it collects. (The fat may be used for flavoring and browning foods later.)

Place bacon fat in a warm place while omelet is cooking. Add yolks, water and seasonings to whites. Mix lightly. Pour into the hot pan in which the bacon was cooked. Cook slowly until the omelet is very puffy on top and brown underneath. Cook for five minutes in a slow oven. Carefully turn half-over and place on a heated platter. Surround with hot bacon strips and serve immediately.

Jellied Cherry Pie.

1 baked pie crust
1½ tablespoons granulated gelatin
½ cup cold water
1½ cups boiling cherry juice
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ tablespoon salt
2 tablespoons orange juice
2½ cups seeded red cherries (canned)

Soak gelatin for five minutes in the cold water. Dissolve in cherry juice. Add sugar, cinnamon, salt, orange juice and cherries. Chill until slightly firm. Pour into the pie crust. Chill until firm. Top with whipped cream and serve, cut in wedge-shaped pieces.

Breakfast.
Grapefruit
Puffy Omelet With Bacon
Bran Muffins Coffee

Dinner.
Asparagus Soup
Roast Beef and Browned Carrots
Browned Gravy
Creamed Turnips
Bread Cranberry Sauce
Celery
Jellied Cherry Pie Coffee

Supper.
Cheese-Filled Sandwiches
Hot Chocolate
Nut Cake Pears

Kitchen Hints

Bake fruit cake in covered caserales to keep them moist. Fill the casserole not more than two-thirds full, since the cake will rise. Before storing the cake allow it to cool. Then wrap it in several thicknesses of waxed paper and set it in a cool, dry place. Make the dish airtight by pouring melted paraffin around the edges where the cover meets the dish. Use a glass, china or earthenware dish.

SERVEL ELECTROLUX Gas REFRIGERATOR
Preserve Foods Safely The Year 'Round With GAS Refrigeration
It's always summertime in the kitchen — too warm to preserve perishable foods. Putting them out of doors means they will be too warm at one time, break down by freezing at another. The Servel Electrolux gas refrigerator keeps food safe — retards bacteria growth the year 'round. And it is so economical to operate that it brings this 12-month food protection within the means of every budget.
Besides, you will appreciate the silence of gas refrigeration — the absence of any moving parts in the freezing process to wear out. Visit The Gas Company to see the new models of the refrigerator that is STILL GOING GREAT IN '38. Ask about paying for a Servel Electrolux out of the savings it will make for you.

Mrs. Terry F. Lano, 129 W. 4th St., Port Clinton, says— "Consider my Electrolux gas refrigerator most economical investment we've ever made in our home. For two years it has provided constant, carefree, silent and economical refrigeration."

Mrs. Robert Oglevee, 2336 Wilmer St., Zanesville, Ohio, says— "Like my Electrolux gas refrigerator because of perfect refrigeration it gives and complete silence. Never put on edge by noise of starting and stopping. Very economical to operate."

200 Killed as Spanish Loyalists Win Battle at Sea

BOMBS STRIKE REBEL VESSEL, SET IT AFIRE

British Destroyers Rescue 400 of 800 Aboard Ship; 2nd Cruiser Attacked.

BARCELONA—(INS)—Two hundred lives were lost when a 10,000-ton rebel Spanish cruiser, apparently the crack Baleares, was set afire by loyalist warships and airplanes in the greatest naval battle since the World war, it was stated here today.

Identity of the destroyed vessel remained obscure, but it was either the Baleares or its sister ship the Canaris. Spanish government officials here expressed belief it was the former.

Still Above Water.

Some hours after the attack, government observers aboard the destroyer Libertad wirelessed to Barcelona that the burning ship was still above the waves.

"We have sighted the cruiser in flames a mile and a half away," Marine Commisary Alonso radioed. "A column of flame and smoke is soaring almost a mile in the air. The fire will last for several hours."

The British destroyers Boreas and Kempenfelt picked up 400 of the estimated 800 men aboard the cruiser.

As 15 warships blazed with their heaviest guns and squadrons of planes dropped bombs, the cruiser was set aflame and a yawning hole ripped in her hull by a torpedo launched from the loyalist destroyer Lepanta.

Leap From Vessel.

Loyalist government reports in Barcelona said many of the crew leaped overboard and the insurgent war craft made frantic efforts, as they retreated, to pick them up.

Amid the confusion of battle, loyalist war planes, informed of the conflict, darted out from Cartagena and pelleted the withdrawing insurgent fleet.

They reported that the other cruiser, the Canarias, was hit by one bomb and that another settled the fate of the Baleares.

Prison Fugitive 12 Years, Hopes He'll Get Pardon

BUCHANAN, Mich.—(INS)—Escaped convict Koler Holsclaw today relied on a 12-year record of respectability to bring him a pardon from North Carolina authorities seeking his extradition to complete the murder term he was serving when he escaped from Raleigh State prison.

Holsclaw, who became a respected citizen here under the name of Frank Bentley following his escape, said yesterday he would not fight extradition, adding "maybe I can get a pardon on the basis of my record."

He was revealed as the escaped convict when his fingerprints were sent to the department of justice in Washington following an automobile accident in which a passenger in his car was fatally injured. He was charged with drunken driving after the accident.

Up and Down THE STREET

Add to the list of Mansfielders enjoying themselves in the warm climes of Florida the names of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Gano, Sturges avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Gano are in Miami where they report they're meeting Mansfielders and other Ohioans daily. One of the latest was Charles Sawyer, former lieutenant-governor, who incidentally was a schoolmate of Mr. Gano in Cincinnati.

Mansfield had its own dust storm today, but it was man-made and not like the kind that drives families from their homes in Kansas and Colorado. Pulled to the earth by wreckers making way for a new theater, the brick wall of the old Presbyterian church at South Park and Diamond streets crashed this morning with a tremendous roar that sent up a cloud of red dust that all but obscured the old brick building. Mrs. E. P. Long, matron of the county jail across the street, immediately felt sorry for the western housewives who try to keep their window curtains clean.

One of the most important jobs on the campus of Michigan State college at East Lansing, that of editor-in-chief of the State News, the school's newspaper, will be handled by Ray Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Turner, 136 Rae avenue, a junior. Turner was recently appointed by the faculty and will hold the post for one year. He has been on the staff since entering the school there. The paper is published three times a week and is distributed in the city of East Lansing as well as the college.

Within the next few days the city of Mansfield's motor vehicles will be carrying new 1938 license plates—somewhat different than you will have on your machine and in a different series than has been in use during the past year. The new plates are in the OS series and run from 751 to 786. They also will be minus the little covered wagon and ox team that appears on other plates. Thirty-five new sets of tags were delivered to Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert today.

NEW ACCUSER

Chicagoan Says Mrs. Hahn Got $1,500 From Him.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Police Captain Patrick Hayes announced today that Anna Marie Hahn, condemned poison slayer now in Ohio penitentiary, had been identified by Andrew Gunther, 41, of Chicago, as the woman who obtained $1,500 from him on the promise of marrying him in 1936.

Gunther left Cincinnati for Columbus after identifying a rogue's gallery picture of the woman convicted in November of the poison slaying of 78-year-old Jacob Wagner, and said he would confront Mrs. Hahn in prison.

Gunther told Hayes that he met Mrs. Hahn in Milwaukee through a matrimonial agency and that they became engaged. He placed the $1,500 in a joint bank account, Gunther said.

On June 16, 1936, he told Hayes, he found a note in the apartment indicating the woman was 'going to Hammond, Ind.," and that "the wedding is off." A sum of $9 was left in the account.

WANT OHIOAN TO LEAD TAX FIGHT

G. O. P. House Members Viewing Lamneck, Democrat, to Head Repeal Program.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Republican house members talked today of getting a Democrat, Representative Lamneck of Ohio, to lead their fight for complete repeal of the undistribtued profits tax.

If they follow that strategy, aimed at winning more Democratic votes, the repeal amendment to the tax revision would be offered in Lamneck's name.

A vote on the proposal late today or tomorrow was acknowledged by legislators to be the first big test of house sentiment on the administration's tax program.

As approved by the ways and means committee, the bill would impose no undistributed profits levy on corporations having net incomes of $25,000 or less. They would pay only a normal income tax of 12½ to 16 per cent.

But larger corporations would pay what would be, in effect, a 16 per cent income tax, plus a 4 per cent surtax on any undistributed profits. It was this surtax which the Republicans wanted to eliminate.

Representative Vinson (D-Ky), chairman of a subcommittee which drafted the revenue bill, predicted defeat of the repeal proposal.

The vote will be followed by scraps over the capital gains tax and a proposed new surtax on closely-held corporations.

STAGE SET FOR MURDER TRIAL OF O. S. R. PRISON FARM TRUSTY

(By International News Service)

ELYRIA—The third youth to confess the attack-murder of pretty Louise Hornbeck, 19, in nearby Grafton last Oct. 18, and the second to appear in court for the crime, will go on trial before Common Pleas Judge Guy B. Findley here tomorrow.

The youth is Edward Hensley, 22-year-old trusty at the prison farm three miles north of Grafton. Hensley was transferred to the farm from the Mansfield reformatory 16 months ago. He was serving an indeterminate sentence, imposed in his home city, Youngstown, for attacking and robbing a woman. He had served another sentence for a similar crime in the Lancaster Industrial school.

Hensley was arrested shortly after an attempted attack on Miss Bernadette Bater, 22, in Grafton, near the scene of the Hornbeck murder. Under continuous questioning, he confessed the Hornbeck attack and murder, authorities said.

Investigation proved he had been absent from the prison farm, where he served as a houseboy in the home of Supt. C. H. Swan, on the night of the murder. Other evidence also substantiated his confession, Prosecutor Howard Butler said.

Through his attorney, R. F. Rendinell, of Youngstown, Hensley pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity when arraigned on the murder charge.

Two other youths "confessed" the murder. One, Alexander Maneff, of West Homestead, Pa., was adjudged insane and committed to the Lima State hospital.

The other, who "confessed" when arrested for attempted assault on a high school girl in Marshall, Mich., the day after the Hornbeck murder, was found innocent. He received a nine-year term for the Marshall crime, however.

CLAIMS BOARD BATTLED FOR NEARLY 3 YEARS

Chairman Says 'Surrender' Now Isn't Right Course; Tells of Faith In Program.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Arthur E. Morgan indicated today he would stick to his post as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority despite suggestions of his co-directors that he resign.

"To surrender the chance to make some contribution to decency and effectiveness in government does not seem to be the right course," he said.

Asserting a firm belief in the social and economic aims of the TVA experiment, Morgan added: "For those great possibilities to be lost by habits of misrepresentation, intrigue and arbitrary action seems tragic."

His latest thrust in an open battle with Harcourt Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, the other TVA directors, disclosed that dissension had existed in the agency for nearly three years.

Delayed Statements.

Chairman Morgan related how he had put off making public his complaints until last week, in the hope of a settlement. In a public statement at that time, he had declared he contended "with an attitude of conspiracy, secretiveness and bureaucratic manipulation," and asked a broad investigation of the TVA.

Later, President Roosevelt made public the views of Harcourt Morgan and Lilienthal that the chairman sought to "rule or ruin" in TVA.

Chairman Morgan's latest statement, made public last night, was a letter which he had written to Representative Waverick (D-Tex).

Responding to Maverick's assertion that TVA had contracted to sell the bulk of its power to "monopolistic" companies instead of to public power agencies, he said relations of the TVA and "the aluminum company" failed to protect the public interest.

(Presumably, he referred to power contracts made with a Tennessee plant of the Aluminum Company of America.)

In another power contract with private industry, Morgan said, he discovered a "joker" which would have permitted the Arkansas Power and Light company "to buy prime power at secondary power rates."

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Fog In The White House

IN A TIME such as this, with so many men out of work, business on its belly and apprehension general, few persons would carry partisanship or personal feeling to the point of not cordially supporting the president in any constructive move he made. For one thing it would be wicked; for another it would be stupid.

BUT, how can that be done? It is foolish not to face facts, and the truth is it is impossible to reconcile with reason Mr. Roosevelt's course since this depression developed. No one close to him seems certain as to his policy, or even that he has one. His friends leave him without a feeling of dependence. If he has determined the direction in which he is going he has not revealed it What he says at one time is nullified by what he does at another. The whole atmosphere is murky; the fog is thick.

PRIVATELY and publicly, he has made various reassuring statements. Business men have left the White House convinced that he has a real grasp on the situation and is anxious to restore the industrial health. He, of course, his friends say, recognizes that this is a business country; firmly believes in the profit system; recognizes that another spending splurge would be perilous; knows that a slump bears most heavily upon the poor; that it is essential to restore confidence.

HE HAS ceased even to talk about curtailing expenses and, after having permitted both little and big business men invited to the White House to believe he was in entire accord with their recommendations, has just allowed them to lapse. But that would not be so discouraging if it were not for the nullifying influence of other activities both personal and political. Outstanding among these is the continuation as intimate advisers of a group of men known to be hostile to the profit system, who urge that it is not worth while to try to revive business, and are confident that they can force him into another spending program.

ANOTHER is his open approval of such grandiose and absurd schemes as Senator Bulkley's eight-billion-dollar "self-liquidating system of super-highways," fortunately buried in the senate on Thursday by a vote of 38 to 36, with the administration senators supporting the bill. Another is White House indorsement of such men as Senator Claude Pepper, of Florida, who, as an administration spokesman, in his recent New York debate with Howard Bruce, drenched his audience with the old campaign claptrap about business and business men.

ANOTHER is the unprecedented personal activity of the president in promoting the New York gubernatorial candidacy of Robert H. Jackson, one of his left-wing advisers, who, with the bitter Mr. Ickes, recently made a joint attack on business and is eager for further governmental regulation. An other is the fact that the president is now exerting himself to force through the departmental reorganization bill, which, though diluted, still will greatly enhance his personal power, increase the number of jobholders, provide him with six additional $10,000 secretaries, give him control of the civil service, abolish the office of comptroller general and not save anything at all.

IT WOULD be easy to expand this list of things done by Mr. Roosevelt since January to offset the assurances given his more level-headed advisers, all of which tend to keep business in a state of uncertainty, to freeze capital, paralyze enterprise and deepen the depression. It is a condition which many friends of the president deplore. He cannot get through a congress, to which sanity has returned, any radical proposal, and he knows it. But, on the other hand, neither economy nor stability can be achieved without a White House leadership which is lacking. There isn't strength

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If the candid camera can be believed, and it nearly always can, movie maidens are going in for calf-glamor.

Perhaps fashion's upping the skirtline has something to do with it, although there never was a time when ladies of the cinema didn't have to pay a lot of attention to their underpinnings, seeing as how every one else did.

Whatever the cause, the result is an eyeful: well-turned calves, in fancy spun hose.

Here are three recent innovations and a revival—

LYNN BARRIE affects these fishnets which were considered to, too daring back in the 1900's, but now are just nice

LEAH RAY goes in for a bit of open work. Her chiffons have daintily woven insets of fine black lace.

JAYNE REGAN steps into her car., revealing sheer hosiery with two black seams up the back instead of the conventional one.

CAMILLI ANSWER TO DODGERS' PRAYER FOR FIRST BASEMAN

By DAVID J. WALSH
(INS Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—Dolph Camilli, who was third in the National League's home run derby and first in fielding his position, has become a member of our set over in Brooklyn through the medium of a deal, announced last night, between the Dodgers and the Phillies, whereby both benefitted most handsomely. The Phils, as a matter of fact, benefitted by at least $50,000.

As for the Dodgers, they picked up a first baseman who can field, throw, hit and probably play the banjo and, as a result, it seems more than possible that they bought themselves an option at the head of the second division but it doesn't seem to have been enough. Anyhow, some of the local gazeteers are a little derisive about the whole thing, devoting too little attention—it seems to me—to the significance of Camilli's arrival and too much to some sophomoric humor about the price paid.

We can dismiss that by saying that the Phillies, in addition to Outfielder Eddie Morgan, didn't take it out in street car tokens. Neither will Camilli.

The latter has been talked to over the long distance telephone in San Francisco and, right now, the sum of $2,500 stands between the Dodgers' idea of a 1938 salary—and his own. Ultimately, he'll sign for not less than $16,000 and probably a little more. And no matter what they say about his hitting in the Phillies' "vestibule" ball park, the fellow will hit anywhere because generally speaking he always has.

As a matter of fact, he hit .400 at Ebbets Field last year and led the league in home runs there with five, being pronounced "pull" hitter, with the Brooklyn right field fence invitingly close. The rest of the record shows that he hit .339, drove in 113 runs, scored 101, led the first basemen in fielding and, with 27 home runs, finished third behind Medwick and Ott.

BRIEFLY, he brings the Dodgers what they've needed and, at the same time, he leaves them in an excellent position to do business with the rest of the league.

As for the Phillies, last night's deal was a splendid one, from their standpoint. It lets them open the park in April. Incidentally, their first baseman probably will be Jim Brown who came up from Louisville last year and hit .292. But Maxie Rosenbloom would do just as well.

Buddy Hassett May Be Traded to Giants.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(U.P.)—Purchase of Dolph Camilli by the Brooklyn Dodgers set off a flock of trade rumors today. The most persistent called for a deal sending First Baseman Buddy Hassett from the Dodgers to the New York Giants in return for Catcher Gus Mancuso and cash. Such a trade would give both clubs strength where it is needed.

TYGERS LOOM AS SERIOUS DISTRICT TITLE THREATS

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor

A TEAM that wasn't supposed to have any business on the same floor with several of the quintets in the Class A district tournament in Sandusky today loomed as a serious title threat.

Mansfield high school boasts the team that has the experts in northwestern Ohio running for cover to hide their embarrasment.

Accorded no chance in the pre-tournament reckoning because of their defeat by Sandusky during the regular season, Mansfield's Tygers are now being heralded as the team of destiny by the same young scribblers who couldn't see Coach Russ Murphy's hoopsters with magnifying glasses a week ago.

Of course, Mansfield may not even reach the finals in the district elimination, but the fact that the Men of Murphy have thrown a scare into their rivals cannot be denied.

The current edition of the Tygers advanced further than any Mansfield team since 1927 when they reached the semi-finals Saturday night by bowling over Tiffin Junior Order, 44 to 18, in an easy assignment.

Mansfield's 1927 team reached the state tournament, and no other edition since passed the second round in the district elimination until this year.

Murphy's men return to action in Sandusky Friday night against Bellevue, one of the pre-tournament favorites. This game will probably decide the championship.

As Mansfield and Bellevue are rated as the two strongest clubs remaining in the tournament, the general opinion is that the team which wins this tussle will more than likely roll into the state finals.

Sandusky and Ashland vie in the other semi-final tilt Friday night.

Sandusky's victory over the Tygers earlier this season is now excepted as an upset as the Blue Streaks have not shown anything to compare with the brand of ball the Murphymen are displaying in the tournament.

The Blue Streaks pulled somewhat of upset Saturday by trimming Fremont, 32 to 24, but the Bellevue-Port Clinton game ran true to form, with the former winning, 35 to 25.

Ashland served notice on Sandusky by taking Shelby into camp by a 42 to 16 count. The A's showed considerable more class in their first tournament appearance than they did at any other time this season.

Coach Murphy used substitutes freely Saturday to accustom his squad to tournament play, and one lineup looked as good as another as the Tygers completely baffled the taller Juniors.

Dave Shelley was one of the Tygers who showed up well. The lanky forword led the club in scoring with 11 points, with John Hallabrin following with 10.

Of the 10 players in the tussle, only three failed to count at least one point.

Mansfield held a comfortable lead all the way. It held a 9-6 advantage at the end of the first period, 17-10 the half and 26-14 going into the final frame.

The Tygers took things rather easily until the fourth period when they applied the pressure as they rung up 18 points.

OHIOAN NEW NET CHAMP

Don McNeil, Kenyon College Student, Wins National Indoor Tourney.

GAMBIER—(AP)—This Knox county village of 498, and the 240 students (all boys) of Kenyon college, had but one idol today—Don McNeill, 19-year-old junior and the new national indoor men's tennis champion.

Saturday at New York Don swept through Gotham's Frank Bowden, 9-7, 3-6, 6-4 and 7-5 in the finals of the tennis classic.

"Jeep" Sure Thing.

The east might have been surprised by McNeill's performance, but his schoolmates here could have told the world that "Jeep," his college nickname, was going to win that crown.

Don won the national junior indoor tennis title a year ago, and was the big reason why Kenyon's tennis team was undefeated although it played top-notch squads from the south and from Ohio State to Maine.

McNeill, one of America's brightest hopes for future Davis cup teams was born in Oklahoma City where his father, an insurance man, gave him his first lessons on the court when he was 11 years old.

When he enrolled at Kenyon he was third on the national junior ranking. After winning the junior championship he hopped to ninth place in the senior rankings.

McNeill said he might adopt tennis as a profession if he could reach the top quickly, but that if not he would enter business.

He's a Lightweight.

ANOTHER MAN O' WAR

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Stagehand, acclaimed today as another Man o' War, stands as the most dangerous candidate in the historic Kentucky derby.

Stagehand's smashing victory in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap was faster than any winner ever ran in the Kentucky derby.

The history of the Blue Grass classic discloses the closest time to that made by Stagehand was set in 1931 by Twenty Grand. Stagehand ran the mile and one-quarter Saturday in 2 minutes and one and three-fifth seconds. Twenty Grand's time over the same distance was 2 minutes and 3.4 seconds.

Tackle Second Division Foes

Leaders Expected to Hold Places in Games Tuesday.

No changes are anticipated in the Class B Church league standings Tuesday night when play is resumed at the Y. M. C. A. All of the leaders face second-division foes.

Tuesday's games pit Central M. E. against Mayflower, Park Avenue Baptist against St. John's, First Lutheran against B'Nai Jacob, First Presbyterian against South Main, and First M. E. against First Christian, the first tilt starting at 7 p. m.

The Lutherans and Baptists are tied for first place, with First Christian next in line.

BOWLERS from Michigan, Indiana and Illinois dominated the scoring in the opening shift of the third annual Moose national handicap tournament which got under way at the Meder alleys over the week-end.

Aids by a handicap of 387 pins, Moore's Recreation of Dearborn, Mich., rolled into the five-man lead with a 3067 total. Another Dearborn team, Moose No. 1, is in second place with a 2992 total.

Cleveland Is Third.

Trailing in third place in the team event is the Cleveland entry, which compiled a 2876 total. The Mansfield Moose Ears top the local teams in fourth place with a 2818 count.

Scores of other Mansfield teams: Moose Tails, 2803; Moose Hoofs, 2766; Central Ohio Legion, 2735; Moose Eyes, 2524; Moose Horns, 2267.

Topping the doubles division is the combination of Allison and Willer of Kokomo, Ind., who registered a 1295 total with the aid of a good-sized handicap. Johnson and Block of Dearborn, Mich., are in second place with a 1271 count, and are followed by Proctor and Gibbs of Kokomo, 1234.

The only Ohioans in the first 10 of the doubles are three Cleveland comb duos, Rice-Birch, 1231; Zeman-Stotter, 1213; Kraus-Zelinski, 1207.

Leading the singles standings is Govi of Aurora, Ill., who blasted out an even 700 with a handicap. Stotter of Cleveland is second with a 677 and Wayman, also of Auroro, follows in third place with a 659.

No Mansfield bowlers participated in the minor events over the week-end.

Ohio Teams to Bowl.

Ohio teams will fill the shifts Saturday and Sunday, D. D. Renner, tournament director, announced today.

Opening ceremonies at the alleys Saturday night were featured by the rolling of the first ball by Mayor Claude M. Hunter.

MEPHISTO, PRINCE ILATKI TOP 'LADIES' NIGHT' BILL

Arabian to Be Tested by Former Champion In Ring at Armory Tonight.

PRINCE ILAKI of Bagdad, Arabia, will have a chance to prove just how tough a wrestler he really is tonight when he engages the Great Mephisto in the headline bout on the Quality club weekly presentation at the Armory to which women will be admitted free if accompanied by escorts.

A stranger to Mansfield fans, the Arabian comes to the city touted as quite a hold mixer.

Compiles Fine Record.

He has compiled an enviable record in western rings, and while Mansfield followers of the mat sport are anxious to see the light-heavyweight in action, they question whether he will be a match for Mephisto.

Mephisto, who only recently lost the light-heavyweight championship, has a big following in the city, and the majority of the fans will undoubtedly string along with him in the match.

Tonight's match will mark Mephisto's first appearance in the city since he was shorn of the crown.

These two light-heavies are scheduled to go at it in a two-falls-out-of-three match with a 90-minute time limit.

In the other match of the same length, Joe Magyar, crafty Hungarian contender, will meet Sterling (Silver) Davis, rough Texas light-heavyweight, who was disqualified for his rough tactics in his bout with 'Gentleman Jack' Claybourn last week.

All-Columbus Opener.

The show will be opened at 8:30 p. m., with an all-Columbus match featuring Joe Wolfe against Jack Smithers. This will be a one-fall match with a 20-minute time limit.

Young Sets New Mark As Purdue Wins Title.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Purdue carried home its 10th Big Ten basketball championship today and placed slender, sharpshooting Jewell Young in the top niche of its hall of fame.

Of all the high-scoring stars in Purdue history, Young hits the fastest pace. He shattered the conference scoring records last year and broke it again this season with a final splurge that brought his 12-game total to 184 points. Against Northwestern Saturday night, Purdue had a stiff fight but clinched an undisputed title by winning, 42 to 39.

New District 'B' Champion To Be Crowned This Week

Ontario's Defending Kings Dropped Out of Play By McCutcheonville.

A NEW district champion will be crowned in the Class B tournament to be concluded in Carey this week.

Springfield township high school cagers of Ontario were eliminated in the second round in their defense of the championship Saturday night.

Semi-Finals Friday.

The semi-finals Friday night will pit Sulphur Springs, which pushed Butler out of competition, against Bettsville and Rawson, 1937 district runner-up, against McCutcheonville.

Ontario bowed out of the elimination in a spectacular tussle in which McCutcheonville of Wyandott county came from behind in the final period to edge the Warriors, 27 to 26.

It was a nip and tuck game which Ontario would undoubtedly have won had it been able to find the basket from the free throw line.

Coach Orv Kibler's Warriors were offered 23 charity throws, and they converted only eight.

Ontario loomed as the likely winner in the first period after running up an 8 to 1 lead, but it faltered in the second stanza to permit its rival to climb ahead by a 15-11 margin at the intermission.

The Warriors came back to take the lead in the third frame, the period ending 18 to 17 in favor of the Richland Countians, but they were unable to retain this advantage in the last quarter.

Lead Changes Often.

The lead changed several times in the fourth frame before McCutcheonville definitely decided the issue.

In the other games Saturday, Rawson trimmed Thompson, 29 to 23, and Bettsville whipped Vanlue, 45 to 30.

FROSH CLUB TOUGH, TOO

Unbeaten Wittenberg Frosh Team's Lineup Includes Ed Chatlain.

SPRINGFIELD — Wittenberg college boasts of not only one good basketball team but two. First, the varsity closed its season by winning 15 consecutive games and undisputed possession of the championship in the Ohio conference, while the freshmen went through their season undefeated. The yearlings won nine consecutive games.

Ed Chatlain of Mansfield, a forward, was a member of the undefeated "frosh" team. Chatlain showed exceptionally well on the offensive.

With three regulars graduating from this year's team, Chatlain will have a good chance for a varsity berth next season. Chatlain has already received a numeral sweater for football.

Wooster Star Cops Ohio Scoring Title.

Nick Frascella, Wooster, copped the state individual scoring title Saturday night when he caged 15 points to lead Wooster to a 44 to 43 victory over Muskingum. The evening's scoring mark pushed Frascella's total for the year to 394 points. Chuck Chuckovits, Toledo star, the Wooster ace's chief rival for the crown, came through with 15 points against Loyola of Chicago, finishing the season with 388 points.

Stocks Shuffle Over Narrow Range

TRADERS STAY ON SIDELINES IN DULL MARKET

Await Further Developments From Washington; Study 'Steel' Survey.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks acted as if they wanted to go up in today's market, but most were notably lacking in climbing vigor.

The list shuffled over a narrowly irregular range at the opening. Steels then edged forward and, near the second hour, fractional advances were in the majority.

Bonds and commodities were mixed and sluggish.

Boardrooms studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that, while there was a gradual strengthening of demand for the metal, most consumers were continuing the waiting attitude which has characterized the situation for many weeks.

The principal handicap to any substantial buying at this time, it was added, are large inventories of manufactured products still in the hands of users.

The one bright spot on the steel horizon, the review pointed out, was the fact agricultural implement factories had been operating at relatively high schedules.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON —(AP)—(USDA)—Trading in the Boston wool market during the past week was slower than in the previous week. Buyers continued their efforts to buy wools at previous forced-sale prices and remained out of the market except when actual needs required them to cover. Most sales of greasy shorn territory and Texas wools were at asking prices which were in line with the highest prices of the previous week. Greases were slow and prices irregular. Combing bright fleece wools sold occasionally in small quantities at 27 to 29 cents in the grease for fine Delaine, at 28 to 29 cents for half-blood, at 26 to 28 cents for three-eighths blood and at 26 to 27 cents for quarter blood.

CARPENTER, 69, TAKEN BY DEATH

BUCYRUS—Conrad Kohl, 69, of 623 South Poplar street, died at his home Sunday. A carpenter, Mr. Kohl was a native of Cumberland, Md.

Surviving are his wife, Maggie; a son, Frank of Toledo; two daughters, Mrs. Marie Smith of Kent and Mrs. Clara Rizer of Bucyrus; a brother, Henry, two sisters, Mrs. Anne Haffer and Mrs. Elizabeth Barngord of Cumberland, Md., and four grandchildren. He was a member of the Good Hope Lutheran church.

Services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Munz funeral home in charge of Rev. H. H. Glick, with burial in the Oakwood cemetery.

SPEEDS MOTHER SLAYING TRIAL

Prosecutor Says Death Penalty Won't Be Sought for Boy, 16.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers planned a speedy trial today for 16-year-old Theodore Danielsen, jr., charged with the slaying of his mother.

If the small, blond youth is indicted by the grand jury, scheduled to convene today, the state will not demand the death penalty, Meyers said.

Police Capt. Herbert Burns reported the boy had confessed plunging a bread knife into his mother's throat last Thursday because she berated him for truancy from high school.

RAID 14 'SPOTS'

Liquor Agents Bear Down In Pennsylvania Mop Up.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)— Week-end raids on 14 night spots and the arrest of approximately 100 persons launched the Pennsylvania liquor control board's statewide drive against liquor law violators.

Ninety-seven agents moved simultaneously against the clubs early Sunday in the largest raids since repeal of prohibition.

BURIED TODAY

ASHLAND — Funeral services for Charles H. Camp, 49, who died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Anna Ewing of Twelfth street here Friday night, were held at the Red Haw Evangelical church this afternoon. Burial was made in Red Haw cemetery.

Survivors include his mother; two daughters, Miss Gladys Camp of Ashland, and Mrs. Evelyn Wheaton of Mansfield; a son, John Camp of West Salem and three brothers, Harry of Ashland, Ralph of Reedsburg and Scott of Jeromesville.

FUNERAL TODAY

BUCYRUS — Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Wise funeral home for Mrs. J. Darl Linn, formerly of Bucyrus, who died in a Lima hospital Friday night. Burial was made in Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Linn was taken to the hospital shortly after the birth of a child last Dec. 11. The deceased was formerly Doris Gatchell of this city. Her husband survives.

WOMAN BARES FANTASTIC PLOT

Testifies Both Lenin, Stalin Were Targets of Assassins In Death Conspiracy.

cutor Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Bukharin said.

"Under no circumstances and at no time did we speak of killing Lenin or Stalin."

Mme. Yakovleva, arrested some time ago and held incommunicado at Lubyanka, was closely guarded during her testimony. She spoke in a low voice directly to Judge Ulrich, with her back to the spectators.

Bukharin asked permission to question Mme. Yakovleva himself. His request was granted for this evening's session.

The idea of the Kremlin revolution, the story of which has created the greatest sensation of the trial, began in 1929, the famous former editor of Pravda and Izvestia, testified earlier.

Prosecutor Vishinsky immediately pounced upon Bukharin with penetrating questions to draw out details of the scheme.

The fifth day of the trial found the defendants rested and less nervous than before. Yesterday's respite, when the Soviet rest day happened to coincide with the Christian Sunday, apparently helped quiet the doomed men's nerves. The trial is expected to end in four or five days.

Ambassador Joseph E. Davies of the United States, and the Italian and Japanese emissaries were among the diplomatic contingent present.

STOLE FOR DAD

Youth Says He Wanted to Get Flowers For Funeral.

NEW YORK—(AP)—He was 17 and his father had died and he didn't want to go to the funeral "without even a flower."

That, said James Pichny, jobless and broke, was why he stole a $2.95 alarm clock from a drug store counter.

He told Magistrate Myles A. Paige: "My dad loved flowers, and I decided to get some by hook or crook. I was going to sell the alarm clock."

Magistrate Paige paroled the youth so he could attend the funeral today of his father, John Pichny, an elevator operator.

There were flowers, too. Sympathetic neighbors sent a floral spray.

SCOLDING SEEN AS SLAYING CLUE

Father Held In New Probe of Six-Year-Old Killing.

LEWISBURG, Pa.—(AP)—A scolding given to four-year-old child in a lonely mountain cabin Christmas day six years ago was viewed by authorities today as a link to a possible motive in a murder case.

District Attorney William L. Showers, pressing the investigation into the shooting of Mabel Nearhood in 1931 for which her father, Arthur, is being held, said: "I understand he reprimanded the child before this happened." He added that he had "learned enough" from the girl's mother to warrant the investigation.

7 DIE AS FRENCH PLANE CRASHES

Airliner Falls in Flames in Central India.

NEW DELHI, India — (AP) — Three French passengers and the four-man crew of a French airliner were killed today when the plane crashed in flames near Datia, capital of the state of that name in central India. One of the passengers was a woman.

The plane was in the regular service between Hanoi, French Indo-China, and Paris. It left Calcutta last night west bound.

IN CHARGE OF PROGRAM

SHELBY — Rev. M. P. Paetznick, assistant pastor of the First Lutheran church was in charge of the ministerial program at the high school auditorium today, sponsored by the Shelby Ministerial association.

ON SCREEN, OFF, THIS GAL MAE NEVER CHANGES

It Doesn't Take Long, Either, to Find She Uses Her Head as Effectively as Hips.

As for her size, which has been the subject of so much discussion, it is the only point of difference with her screen figure. She is five foot five inches tall and weighs 119 pounds. In case you are a fiend for technicalities she wears a size 34 brassiere. I didn't believe it either, but she proved it to me beyond doubt.

As to how she creates that illusion of voluptuousness—for it is an illusion—she is quite frank about it. "See," she said lifting the baby blue feathered jacket, "I wear a specially built garment which is very tight around the waist, and ends about three inches below the waist, leaving the hips to go where they will."

When we first settled down to a visit, I couldn't keep my mind on what she was saying because of blinding flashes of light when she waved a half million dollars worth of diamonds and star sapphires in front of me. So I suggested that we go into the diamond situation before continuing with the psychology behind her showmanship.

She wore six rings, the smallest of which was 25 carats, and 15 diamond bracelets. Only Mr. Tiffany could outshine her. And in case you think there is anything phoney about them, dismiss the thought. I took them all in my stride except the 200-carat star sapphire, surrounded by 200 diamonds. I STILL think it can't be as big as it looked, because the whole thing is the exact size of a Plymouth Rock egg. A square, emerald-cut diamond on her little finger was only 75 carats, but I would have guessed twice that.

One of her bracelets is a charm affair, with—you've guessed it—all of the charms in diamonds. The most fascinatin' figure is a replica, in solid diamonds, of the star herself, big hat and all.

"About how much money," I ventured timidly, "have you spent on diamonds in your life?"

She put a glittering hand to her hair, languidly: "Ver' little, Sister; they've been gifts." Jack Chriss, the big bodyguard from the district attorney's office in Los Angeles, who sticks closer than a burr to the frequently-threatened diamond mine, lounged in the doorway, and smiled broadly at her answer.

But to get back to her psychology. It came in answer to a question as to why 65 per cent of her audiences over the world are women — contrary to popular opinion.

"I'll tell you why," she said, "because I represent somethin' that all women secretly admire—a gal who always gets her man, by fair means Critics who say my pictures are vulgar and unrefined, are just plain crazy. Did you ever see me wear a bathin' suit, or cross my knees to show my legs, or mess around with a married man, or take a man away from a woman, or cause any other woman embarrassment, in any of my pictures? Have you ever seen anything that was downright immoral in my pictures? Can you say these things of any other woman star in pictures?

"And when I go after my men, I don't use this slu ·in', (she illustrated) slithery (another illustration) manner of fascinatin' 'em. It's straight out from the shoulders. Which is why I have my shoes built up to make me taller on the screen. I ain't the type to put my hands under my chin and look coyly up at some great big heman. I want to stand on a level with him and look him square in the eye."

I mentioned the Adam and Eve radio sketch of several months ago. Her eyes snapped fire

"I didn't write that sketch, and the heads of the radio company read it and approved it before they ever passed it on to me I was the goat, though, when a few squawks came in and the company passed the buck to me. I didn't say much—but I thought a lot. Adam and Eve have been kicked around by h actors, vaudevillians, newspaper paragraphers and after dinner speakers since time immemorial—but when I take a crack at them in the sam vein, all hell breaks loose. And why? Because there was people listenin' to me that night that should have been in church—and weren't"

We mentioned Timony a little while back. He is part of the philosophical star's private life, but like her, he is a character out of a book—a book about Diamond Jim Brady and Lillian ussell and Delmonico and Rector. The big Irishman, who has been "head man" in her life for many ·ears, is round faced, about six foot two, weighing 250 pounds; wears a bat wing collar, a derby hat, with a d·bonair carnation in his lapel, and carrying a cane with the ease of a boulevardier. Timony ·as been her shadow for years.

As for her priva· life, she is more reserved about it than Garbo. She neither drinks nor smokes and is a devout Catholic. One of the duties of her bodyguard is to conduct the willowy Mae to early mass every Sunday morning, wherever she is. She is never seen at the night spots in Holywood, and her favorite sports are the races and the boxing matches — both men's sports, you'll notice.

Her entourage in Cleveland is impressive. There are six "tall 'n' handsomes" in her sketch; she has three personal maids, her personal manager, Chriss from the Los Angeles police force, and two other officers. A man from the Cleveland detective bureau was never more than a dozen steps from her door; and a man from the Chicago police department, who had brought the party to Cleveland, came in to say goodbye while I was there. When she goes to her next engagement, a Cleveland detective will accompany her there, with another local officer taking up where he leaves off.

As I said goodbye to her, she said: "Wait a minute, I got somethin' here that would look smart on your suit" The "somethin'" was an exquisite crystal and gold lapel watch, the numerals in gold silhouettes around the rim of it. Engraved in tiny letters around the thin gold rim are the ·ords: "Come up and see me sometime. Mae West"

She pinned it on my jacket without a single flattering word. "Smart, huh?" was her only comment.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to her drawing power, take a squint at the houses she is drawing in Cleveland this week—and drawing them during the first week of Lent.

Final Speaker

ALLEN D. ALBERT

INSTITUTE WILL END TOMORROW

Address by Past President of Rotary International to Close 5-Week Series.

A talk by Allen D. Albert, newspaperman and lecturer, at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday in the Mansfield High school auditorium, will close the series of five weekly lectures on international problems sponsored by the Mansfield Rotary and University clubs.

The schedule of lectures in the jointly-sponsored Institute of International Understanding was varied to permit Albert to speak here Tuesday night instead of Monday, because of the final Civic music concert this evening.

Albert, who has had a diversified career as reporter, publisher, foreign diplomatic representative, and lecturer, will speak on "Can Any Nation Live Unto Itself?"

A past president of Rotary International, Albert has spoken at nearly 50 Institutes of International Understanding sponsored by Rotary clubs throughout the nation. He is the author of a number of articles on city planning, city analysis and social changes, and is identified with national movements for supervised recreation and improved educational methods.

Beginning his newspaper career as a reporter on New York and Washington papers, Albert later was a war correspondent in the Spanish-American war and for 15 years was chief editorial writer for the Washington, D. C., Times. He concluded his journalistic work as editor of the Minneapolis Tribune.

He was assistant to the president of the Chicago Century of Progress and visited a number of the foreign capitals on diplomatic missions pertaining to the planning of the exposition.

FATHER OF TWO ON PLANE DIES

made his last radio report, while he was trying through clouds to reach a landing field at Fresno or Bakersfield.

A ground party was ordered today to go to the spot indicated by Sears.

Associated Press dispatches to The News-Journal said the first clear weather since the plane disappeared aided the searchers today. The ground crews left at dawn.

Army planes from Hamilton field, near San Francisco bay, and from Southern California were expected to join in the hunt.

Mr. Dirlam was not informed of the children's plane trip and the disastrous ending, because of his heart condition. Throughout last week he showed some improvement, although little hope was held for his ultimate recovery.

He was born in Mansfield July 12, 1883, and had spent his entire life here. He was educated in the public schools here and at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

For more than 30 years he had been associated with his father, Howard B. Dirlam, in the Mansfield Building and Loan association, and at the time of his death was assistant secretary and a director in the company. He also was a vice president of the Citizens National Bank and Trust company.

Mr. Dirlam was a member of the national fraternity Sigma Alpha Epsilon of the University of Pennsylvania, the Elks' lodge and the Rotary club.

He is survived, besides his father, by his wife, Rachel Tracy Dirlam, a daughter, Sally Snow Dirlam, at home; two brothers, H. Kenneth Dirlam of New Haven, Conn., and R. York Dirlam of Mansfield, and one sister, Mrs. Relmond Shaffer of New York City.

Mr. Dirlam was a member of First Congregational church of Mansfield, and Rev. Peter Young, pastor of that church, will conduct the funeral services which will be held at 3 p. m. Tuesday at the home on Shepherd road. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

FORMER GRADS TO MEET AT BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS—Graduation in June of three residents of Maplecrest, State King's Daughters' home here, will be the occasion for a reunion of girls who have lived at the home.

The reunion will be held Sunday, May 8, and invitations have been sent to all girls who have at one time been residents of the home.

This year's graduates are Ann Apple, who has lived at the home during her entire school life; Miss Clara Clifton, resident for 10 years, and Miss Florence Robinson, resident for nine years.

Talks To Students

FIRE FAILS TO FRIGHTEN THEM

ing. "The building is fireproof. But you know how some people are, always getting excited about little things. When we came down in the morning the lobby was still filled with people in night clothing."

A guest sounded the first alarm and bellboys and night workers were quickly mobilized. Switchboard operators stuck to their posts despite the smoke and routed guests on each floor. A switchboard operator from Philadelphia, who was on a vacation, rushed to a switchboard in her silk pajamas, and went into action, calling guests on that floor.

The 44-story shaft was filled with flames that shot from the sub-basement to the top of the building, the flames given impetus by grease from cooking and by cloth-wrapped pipes. Smoke filled the rooms and water ran down onto the thick carpets of the corridors. The heat was so intense that some of the steel doors buckled.

ASK CLEAR TITLE

Ashland Suit Would Invalidate Lease; Charges Violation.

ASHLAND — Action to invalidate lease and to clear title has been started in common pleas court here by John Shoudt and Mary M. Shoudt against S. P. Farner and Ernie Keeper.

In the petition it is claimed that on January 8, 1935, the plaintiffs leased 92 acres in Hanover township to Farner on the agreement that he mine for coal and other minerals.

In return, the plaintiffs aver that the defendants agreed to furnish five tons of coal a year, and to pay 25 cents for each ton of coal mined.

It is charged that Farner assigned his interest to Keeper on July 19, 1935, and that neither defendant has lived up to the agreement of the lease.

SHE RISKS HER LIFE FOR THE Movies

IONE REED, Hollywood's Daring Movie Stunt Girl, after a hazardous feat, asked for a Camel. And that led to the question: "I've noticed that you're a steady Camel smoker, Miss Reed. Do you have definite reasons for preferring them to other cigarettes?"

THIS SHOWS Miss Reed in one of her daring stunts—leaping from a speeding car to a locomotive. "I know what hard work is," she says. "Many a time I've been thankful for that cheery 'lift' I get with a Camel."

HERE'S MISS REED'S ANSWER: "Yes, indeed, I certainly hate. Camels are distinctly different in so many ways. Going through my stunts over and over is a severe test of healthy nerves. I smoke Camels all through the day, and my nerves don't feel the least bit frayed. Being so mild, they are gentle to my throat too. After a meal, I enjoy Camels—'for digestion's sake.' You see—in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

DARING? Yes! Foolhardy? No! Ione Reed knows what she's doing. And she is careful in her choice of a cigarette, because, as she says: "It means a lot to me to know that my cigarette agrees with me!"

Millions of other people find that Camels give them what they want in smoking!

It's Camels for star stunt girl—Ione Reed! It's Camels for the famous diving expert—Commander Ellsberg! And for golf champion Ralph Guldahl; speed flier Roscoe Turner; and men and women in all walks of life. If you are not now enjoying Camels, perhaps you, too, will find that it means a lot to smoke Camels—the cigarette that is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS, Turkish and Domestic.

FOR RECREATION Miss Reed likes cooking ...dancing...outdoor sports. And Camels! "Hollywood seems to have a decided preference for Camels," she says. "I notice that so many of the stars prefer Camels."

Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS—Turkish and Domestic.

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER
"CAMELS AGREE WITH ME"

"What cigarette do the tobacco growers smoke themselves?"

"Camels—by a large majority," say planters who know the kinds of tobacco bought by each popular cigarette

T. N. Williams, well-known grower, of Winchester, Kentucky, says: "A planter knows tobacco. My last crop was the best I ever had and the Camel people bought my best leaf tobacco. There isn't any question where the more expensive tobaccos go. They're in Camel cigarettes."

Top prices, that's what J. B. Jackson, successful planter, got from the Camel buyer last year. "Camel buyers don't buy just any tobacco—they pay more to get the best. That means finer tobaccos are used for Camels. I say quality has got to be grown in tobacco. That's why I smoke Camels."

"I'm a planter," says Vertner Hatton, who has grown tobacco for 25 years. "Camel bought the best grades of my last crop. Paid a high price for my finest grades. I smoke Camels—because I know there isn't any substitute for more expensive tobaccos."

STATE ALLOTS RURAL SCHOOLS $222,000 IN '38

County Districts Told They Will Get Funds Quarterly If They're Available.

Richland county's 13 rural school districts will receive $222,521 this year from the state department of education for operating expenses, according to the finance schedule set up under the school foundation program.

The allocations which will be distributed quarterly, provided the state has sufficient funds, will be supplemented by tax funds from the county.

The first allocation from the state, totaling $50,975, was made last week in the form of an authorization to borrow, since the state department did not have the cash. Checks for retiring the notes will be distributed later.

Madison Gets $32,000.

Madison township schools, due to receive $32,142 in state funds this year, will profit most under the foundation program.

Next in line will be the Lexington schools which will receive $29,766, provided the state can meet its obligations.

Other school districts are slated to get the following amounts:

Butler rural, $26,581; Bellville, $25,823; Springfield township, $21,724; Union rural, $19,415; Cass township, $16,588; Plymouth village, $14,651; Monroe township, $12,859; Butler village, $10,823; Mifflin township, $4,681; Bloominggrove township, $4,113; Washington township, $3,351.

Mayor of Marion Addresses Meeting Here Tomorrow.

Dr. Frederick C. Smith, mayor of Marion, will address a joint meeting of the John Sherman club of Richland county and the Richland county council of Republican women tomorrow night at the Moose hall.

Dr. Smith, who is now serving his third term as mayor of Marion without compensation, will speak on "Monetary Problems" and is expected to tell how Marion has been one of the few cities in the country that has been able to live within its income, it was announced by D. L. Divelbiss, secretary of the John Sherman club, which arranged the meeting.

A musical program has been arranged for the evening and refreshments also will be served. Donald G. Ogden, president of the John Sherman club will preside at the meeting which begins at 7:30 p. m.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Monday, March 7. "No prophet is accepted in his own country." Read Luke 4:22-30

No critic has ever satisfactorily explained why this should be so, just as no prophet has ever been able to escape the fact that it is so.

The Galileans knew all about Jesus; his home, his family, his life as a carpenter. They had their sufficient matter-of-fact account of him, and that was enough.

Countless persons in our time, think that they have "explained away" religion, by just such near-at-hand accounts of the fact. But the cause of the great and simple things in life always lie far beyond the reach of any such explanation. They are hidden in mystery. If you are to be a Christian you must be cured of the cheap habit of dismissing as of no further interest or worth, persons, happenings, processes to which you can attach the erroneous label, "explained away." Life is more obscure and mysterious than that. What Coleridge said of philosophy is equally true of religion; it begins and ends in wonder.

Prayer: Almighty God who at creation looked upon thy work and saw that it was good, save us from calling common that which thou hast created in cleanliness and made wonderful in mystery, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

RANCHERS OPEN ANTI-ELK DRIVE

Charge Herds Threat to Hay, Forage and Young Orchards.

YAKIMA, Wash. — (INS) — An anti-elk movement has been started by cattlemen here, who charge the elk herds in this area have increased to the point where they constitute a threat to hay, forage and young orchards.

Cattlemen claim to have counted 1,233 head of elk an estimated herds throughout Yakima valley total 2,500. They suggest an open season next year both on bulls and cows as one means of decreasing numbers in the protected herds.

GET UP AT NIGHT?

IF you have disturbed sleep, frequent itching of urination or burning and soreness caused by excess acid, you may need a diuretic stimulant such as Dr. Pierce's A-nuric. The action of A-nuric in flushing the kidneys, diluting acid and relieving irritation has given relief to thousands of men and women. Mr. W. C. Peters, Route 2, Bradford, Pa., says "Before using two bottles of A-nuric I would feel so tired I just wanted to lie down and never seemed to have pep enough to do my work properly. After using two bottles of Dr. Pierce's A-nuric Tablets I feel just fine and am not annoyed by getting up nights." Buy A-nuric at your drug store today.

A building permit for the construction of a $6,500 brick residence at 411 Davis road, has been issued at city building to Charles Getz, Shepard road, Mansfield contractor. Getz also will erect a $250 garage at the same address.

COMPETE HERE

Young People to Take Part In District Drama Festival.

Twelve groups of young people from northern Ohio are expected to compete in a district Drama Festival to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

These groups are winners of county drama festivals held in their respective counties recently. The winner of the festival here will compete in a state contest in Columbus next month.

The young people will present religious dramas of one act length with the first play being given at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

The festivals are sponsored by the Ohio Council of Religious Education, of which the Richland County Youth Council is a member. Arthur Boyce of Five Points, is president of the Richland county group.

Each question counts 20; each part of a two-part question, 10. A score of 60 is fair; 80, good. Answers on Page 11.

1. Who is this inventor's son and what is his job?
2. The U. S. has taken the position that if Americans do not follow its advice to leave endangered areas in China, Japan cannot be held responsible for damage to them. True or false?
3. Are "The Hooded Ones" (a) a French revolutionary organization, (b) a southern society with aims similar to those of the Ku Klux Klan, or (c) a secret band operating against non-fascists in Sicily?
4. What nation honors Woodrow Wilson as responsible to a great extent for its existence?
5. What order has Germany issued concerning American Nazi organizations?

37th Division to Meet Again At Wooster May 14

The 20th anniversary of the first movement of the 146th U. S. Infantry, 37th Ohio National Guard Division, for France and active entrance into the World war, will be marked by a reunion May 14 and 15 at Wooster, Harry L. Evans, of Wooster, regimental association secretary, said today.

It was during May that the division moved to Camp Lee, Virginia, for final preparation for overseas service. From that time on, units were moved to ports of embarkation until the entire organization was on the sea headed for France.

Two Mansfield companies were a part of this regiment, the Supply company, under the command of Capt. J. Earl Ports and Lieut. Thomas P. Brown, and Company M, under command of Capt Alfred I. Harrington with Lieuts Robert L. Bride and Judgson J. Leary.

Prior to their departure for Camp Sheridan, Alabama, the training camp where the 37th division prepared for service, Wooster was the headquarters for the regiment, with Lieut. Col. Frank C. Gerlich in command.

It is planned to give the veterans plenty of time and opportunity to meet their former buddies, Evans said.

Faces 26 Days In Jail For Stealing One Lump of Coal

A 49-year-old WPA worker faced 26 days in county jail today because he stole a lump of coal.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch on a charge of petit larceny, Philip Klug, North Main street, pleaded guilty to the theft of a lump of coal from the Estes Coal and Ice company yards at 575 North Main street, Friday night.

Klug was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to 15 days in jail. If he is unable to pay the fine and costs which total $16.30, he will have to serve out the penalty at the rate of $1.50 a day, which will mean an additional 11 days in jail.

HELD TO JURY IN HARNESS THEFT

Shiloh Man, 44, Pleads Guilty to Grand Larceny Charge.

Jesse Snyder, 44, of Shiloh, was held to the county grand jury under $1,000 bond after he pleaded guilty in municipal court to a charge of grand larceny in the theft of harness valued at $45.

Arrested by Sheriff E. P. Long last Wednesday, Snyder admitted breaking into a barn on the R. A. McBride farm near Shiloh and taking the harness. The harness, stolen Feb. 11 was recovered by Long near Attica after Snyder revealed where he had sold it.

BANS $1 BILLS

Town Rules Silver Dollars Only Legal Tender.

LANDER, Wyo. — (INS) — You can't spend $1 bills in Lander. The local Chamber of Commerce has decided that silver "hard money" is more typical of the West than mere paper bills and by a vote of 16 to 1 has ruled that only silver dollars are legal tender in the town and on nearby dude ranches. A Chamber spokesman announced, however, that there is no ban on $5 bills being spent in the town.

CHAPTER XI

"And this American, Don Murray, and his friend Jose Verdugo?" asked Juan, the dark-faced knife thrower. "If they should be there, eh?"

"I do not think that this American, Don Murray, will be at Rancho La Luz," Red Vasquez answered with an evil and knowing grin. "I have made up a little program for Don Murray—may he rot!—which I think he will follow. And which will interfere with any plans he may have for being at Rancho La Luz in the near future. And as for Jose . . . give him the works."

"That is good," grunted Pedro the Fat. "I have never liked that Verdugo."

"Not since he took your gun away from you and made you chew on it," jerred Avilla, he of the white scar. "Me, I have run into that hombre myself, and he is bad business."

"Wait till I catch up with him again," boasted Pedro.

"He is all yours, Pedro," said Avilla. "All yours. You can have him."

"But I think," Red Vasquez broke in, "that none of you will be troubled by Jose Verdugo either. Now, it is late . . . and I must go look at the little trap I have set. Come Gregorio." He rose. "Watch your step," he warned, at the doorway. "Otherwise—" He snapped his fingers. His men nodded. They understood. Like the snapping of fingers life might depart. Vasquez and Gregorio descended the stairs and turned toward town.

When the footsteps had died away the three men remaining in the room snatched looks at one another, drank, lighted cigarets, looked again.

Then the little knife-thrower, Juan Guadalupe, rose from his chair, went to the window and peered out.

Turning, he said, "They are gone."

And reseating himself, "I have something on my mind. You also, I think."

He paused to scrutinize the other two faces. One head nodded; Pedro the Fat merely shrugged: Enough.

"Me, I am wondering," snapped Guadalupe then, "whether somebody is kidding us. More and more I begin to think so. More and more I begin to have suspicions that—somebody is putting one over on us. Do you understand what I mean?"

Pedro the Fat grunted.

"You mean that we do all the work and—and somebody else gets most of the profits. Well, it is natural that a large part must go to El Jefe—The Chief. And that of what is left Vasquez gets the biggest share. But—what can we do? It is do as we are told—or else."

The knife-thrower shrugged in turn, and looked at the third man, Avilla, the man with the scar. But that one merely waved a brown hand and said, "Go on, hombre; I'm listening."

"It is this, then," said Guadalupe. "One-third of everything goes to The Chief. The Chief? Who is this Chief? I ask you. Have any of us ever seen him? Have any of us ever heard his name? Or where he lives? No. Never. All we know about him is that he takes one-third of all profits. Now, what I have been wondering—is there a Chief? Or is he a very nice dummy which Senor Vasquez has arranged to enable him to crack the whip over us whenever he so desires—and to get an extra third of the profits?"

"I, too," he admitted, "have wondered sometimes about that very thing. I suppose—we could really find out—if we wanted to. Personally, I think it is time we did. Because our jobs are getting more and more dangerous. Vasquez is becoming bolder and bolder—or, perhaps, crazier and crazier. He cares little any more who he kills."

"But," Pedro the Fat broke in "But—he has no fear because, as he says, The Chief will protect him, and us, in all things. Which looks as if there were really a Chief, as he claims."

"Not necessarily, hombre," Guadalupe replied. "Not necessarily. I will tell you this, which you may not know. I am quite sure you don't. Both the father and grandfather of Vasquez died in a madhouse. The father after he had killed three men and a woman without reason. Perhaps, then, Vasquez deludes himself as to the existence of a Chief. Perhaps he merely deludes us—to his own profit. Nevertheless, I think, for myself, that I wish to discover the truth. How about you?"

"It would be wise, I think," assented Avilla. "No use getting hanged or shot for one dollar, if we can get two. But . . . monkeying with Red Vasquez, we may get shot for nothing. So let us be cautious. Cautious as the devil."

"And you, Pedro?" questioned Guadalupe.

"Me? Oh, I agree that we should be cautious. Much more cautious than the devil. I am afraid of Vasquez. I would much rather live for one dollar than get killed for two. But—but of course. . . . If what you suspect. . . . Well, let us try to discover, cautiously, what contact Vasquez has with any one who might be The Chief."

There was a step upon the stair and all fell silent.

A knock at the door.

"Oh, a thousand pardons, senores," he said, with a hiccough. "I thought—thought this was a—hotel. Please excuse me, gentlemen. I—I see—hic! I was—mistaken. I will go away."

He turned toward the stairway, and Guadalupe watched him. As he stumbled down the stairs the knife-thrower returned his knife to his pocket, shrugged and reentered the room.

"Drunk," he said. "Marihuana to boot." He yawned. "I think I shall go to the Porfirio Diaz; there is a new girl dancing there, they say. Want to go?"

"I'll go," replied Avilla. "Vamonos."

They went out, leaving Pedro the Fat dozing over his drinks and muttering:

"But we must be cautious. Cautious as the devil. Red Vasquez is no man to monkey with. Did he not once beat me until I was nineteenths dead?"

It was fairly well filled, perhaps because of the announcement at the entrance that "the famous dancer, La Espanola, will appear here tonight—one evening only."

No one seemed to pay any attention to their arrival, and they seated themselves at a small table not far from the doorway, against the wall. A waiter soon came to take their order.

As he departed, they watched him.

"He ees the one who weel tell them we are here, I betcha," commented Jose. "See, Don Murray. He goes not straight to thee bar. He goes around. He weel speak to somebody, I theenk."

And surely enough, the waiter paused at a table where two men sat, wiped off the table with his cloth, appeared to listen to an order, spoke, and proceeded on his way.

"He has told them we are here," said Jose. But if this was the case, the two men gave no indication of it; merely proceeded with their drinking and smoking and listening to the two girls singing.

"Do you know who they are?" asked Murray.

"I do not know the one with hees back to us," replied Jose. "But thees other one, I theenk, is one feller called Gregorio. I theenk he ees friend to Red Vasquez all right. We will watch them mos' carefulee, Don Murray. And eef they get funnee, we weel shoot the holee hell out of them, w'at?"

"Easy, Jose — e a s y," warned Murray. "Let us see what the girls will do when they have finished their song."

Murray was expectant. He felt that in some way, if a trap had been laid for him, the girls would be used in it. Probably as bait. As an excuse for trouble.

"If they—either one of them—come to this table," he warned Jose, "be careful. Very careful. Don't forget the man Red Vasquez shot the other night."

"Oh, I weel be careful, Don Murray. I am veree careful man. I shall have my gun ready. I weel guard your back and you weel guard mine huh?"

But the two girls remained on the platform only long enough to acknowledge the applause, to look slowly over the audience as though seeking some one, and then retired to their dressing room in the rear.

"They weel be back soon, I theenk," said Jose. "And then . . ."

An announcer arose and called for silence.

"We have a great pleasure tonight," he said . . . and proceeded to tell of "La Espanola," the famous dancer, who had kindly consented to entertain them for one evening only.

Amidst hearty applause La Espanola appeared on the platform smiling, bowing; a small, dark flashing-eyed girl in a swirling green dress, pink stockings and slippers, a high comb in her hair. Almost instantly she swung into a startling dance in which the silken green skirts rose higher and higher as she whirled, until she seemed a mermaid swimming in a turquoise sea.

"That, she ees pretty damn good, w'at?" said Jose. "I theenk ——"

But what Jose thought was never expressed.

'STEEL' BLAMES AUTO INDUSTRY

Magazine Says Steel Production Held Up By Motor Companies.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The magazine Steel said failure of the motor industry to get under way is proving a "considerable deterrent to steel production."

"In general," the publication said, "Steel consumers continue the waiting attitude that has characterized the situation for many weeks, showing no inclination to accumulate stocks, and it is becoming increasingly evident many steel users have large inventory of their manufactured products and will not buy freely until these have begun to move."

RELIEF COSTS FOR FEBRUARY TOTAL $23,790

Expenditures Largest Since County Took Over Problem; 1,236 Families Aided.

Richland county spent $23,790 for relief last month, helping to provide food, clothing and fuel for 1,236 families and 240 single persons, according to the monthly report which had been submitted to county commissioners today by Earl A Nist, county relief director.

Less than one-tenth of the total cost was for admnistration, according to Nist, who listed salaries of workers and other administration bills at $1,915

More than half the relief expense, or $14,215, furnished help for 1,028 cases in Mansfield. Madison township, with 284 cases listed, received $6,568, and Shelby got $1,090 for its 64 relief families

Increase of $4,000.

The February relief cost represented an increase of more than $4,000 over the January bills which will be paid this week with funds transferred from the county's relief bond retirement fund.

During February, the county relief administration received 434 new applications for direct relief, and 368 of the applicants received help

Relief officials certified the names of 327 applicants to the WPA office, and the certifications are now awaiting assignment to federal works projects in the county

The January relief accounts, which had been approved today by C. M. Dawson, state relief investigator, were in "good condition," Dawson said.

Although he described the county releif set-up as "a mix-up" last week, Dawson pointed out the same conditions existed in other counties and blamed the situation on the uncertainty of the entire relief program in the state He said he had no criticism to make of the relief set-up here or its efficiency.

has been abused, is in reality a scheming politician. We understand that he was promised a nice promotion in the event that a certain Democratic candidate was elected governor and that he was promised the position of director of highways in the event that a certain Republican candidate for governor was elected. This in return for his conniving and his testimony What hypocrisy is sometimes hidden under the cloak of self-proclaimed righteousness."

The governor charged that Sparks was a Republican "political appointment" under Gov. M. Y. Cooper and that he "took refuge" under civil service. He said Sparks held his position of attack upon the administration" trations "in spite of the fact that he is known as a partisan Republican"

Gov. Davey accused Sparks of choosing a "subterranean method of attack upon the administration" and of failing to bring a complaint directly to the governor's office.

"If he had complained to the director or other officials and they failed to act and if he had brought his complaint to the governor's office and we failed to act, he would then have been justified in going to the newspapers or following any other course which he chose," the governor stated.

STATE ALLOTS RURAL SCHOOLS $222,000 IN '38

County Districts Told They Will Get Funds Quarterly If They're Available.

Richland county's 13 rural school districts will receive $222,521 this year from the state department of education for operating expenses, according to the finance schedule set up under the school foundation program.

The allocations which will be distributed quarterly, provided the state has sufficient funds, will be supplemented by tax funds from the county.

The first allocation from the state, totaling $50,975, was made last week in the form of an authorization to borrow, since the state department did not have the cash. Checks for retiring the notes will be distributed later.

Madison Gets $32,000.

Madison township schools, due to receive $32,142 in state funds this year, will profit most under the foundation program.

Next in line will be the Lexington schools which will receive $29,766, provided the state can meet its obligations.

Other school districts are slated to get the following amounts:

The Fellowship of Prayer

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Monday, March 7. "No prophet is accepted in his own country." Read Luke 4:22-30.

No critic has ever satisfactorily explained why this should be so, just as no prophet has ever been able to escape the fact that it is so.

The Galileans knew all about Jesus; his home, his family, his life as a carpenter. They had their sufficient matter-of-fact account of him, and that was enough.

Countless persons in our time, think that they have "explained away" religion, by just such near-at-hand accounts of the fact. But the cause of the great and simple things in life always lie far beyond the reach of any such explanation. They are hidden in mystery. If you are to be a Christian you must be cured of the cheap habit of dismissing as of no further interest or worth, persons, happenings, processes to which you can attach the erroneous label, "explained away." Life is more obscure and mysterious than that. What Coleridge said of philosophy is equally true of religion; it begins and ends in wonder.

Prayer: Almighty God, who at creation looked upon thy work and saw that it was good, save us from calling common that which thou hast created in cleanliness and made wonderful in mystery; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

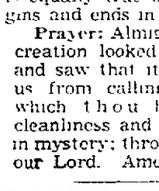
RANCHERS OPEN ANTI-ELK DRIVE

Charge Herds Threat to Hay, Forage and Young Orchards.

YAKIMA, Wash. —(INS)— An anti-elk movement has been started by cattlemen here, who charge the elk herds in this area have increased to the point where they constitute a threat to hay forage and young orchards.

Cattlemen claim to have counted 1,233 head of elk, an estimate herds throughout Yakima valley total 2,500. They suggest an open season next year both on bulls and cows as one means of decreasing numbers in the protected herds.

GET UP AT NIGHT?



IF you have disturbed sleep, irritation or burning and soreness caused by excess acid you may need a diuretic stimulant such as Dr. Pierce's A-nuric. The action of A-nuric in flushing the kidneys, diluting acid and relieving irritation has given relief to thousands of men and women. Mr. W. C. Presley, Route 2, Bradford, Pa., says: "Because of lack of rest I would feel so tired and worn out, never seemed to have pep enough to do my work properly, but since using Dr. Pierce's A-nuric Tablets I feel just fine and am not annoyed by getting up nights." Buy A-nuric at your drug store today.

A building permit for the construction of a $6,500 brick residence at 411 Davis road, has been issued at city building to Charles Getz, Shepard road, Mansfield contractor. Getz also will erect a $250 garage at the same address.

COMPETE HERE

Twelve groups of young people from northern Ohio are expected to compete in a district Drama Festival to be held Saturday and Sunday at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

These groups are winners of county drama festivals held in their respective counties recently. The winner of the festival here will compete in a state contest in Columbus next month.

The young people will present religious dramas of one act length with the first play being given at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

The festivals are sponsored by the Ohio Council of Religious Education, of which the Richland County Youth Council is a member. Arthur Boyce of Five Points, is president of the Richland county group.

37th Division to Meet Again At Wooster May 14

The 20th anniversary of the first movement of the 146th U. S. Infantry, 37th Ohio National Guard Division, for France and active entrance into the World war, will be marked by a reunion May 14 and 15 at Wooster, Harry L. Evans, of Wooster, regimental association secretary, said today.

It was during May that the division moved to Camp Lee, Virginia, for final preparation for overseas service. From that time on, units were moved to ports of embarkation until the entire organization was on the sea headed for France.

Two Mansfield companies were a part of this regiment, the Supply company, under the command of Capt J. Earl Ports and Lieut. Thomas P. Brown, and Company M, under command of Capt Alfred I. Harrington with Lieuts. Robert L. Bride and Judgson J. Leary.

Prior to their departure for Camp Sheridan, Alabama, the training camp where the 37th division prepared for service, Wooster was the headquarters for the regiment with Lieut. Col. Frank C. Gerlach in command.

It is planned to give the veterans plenty of time and opportunity to meet their former buddies, Evans said.

Faces 26 Days In Jail For Stealing One Lump of Coal

A 49-year-old WPA worker faced 26 days in county jail today because he stole a lump of coal.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch on a charge of petit larceny, Philip Klug, North Main street, pleaded guilty to the theft of a lump of coal from the Estes Coal and Ice company yards at 575 North Main street, Friday night.

Klug was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to 15 days in jail. If he is unable to pay the fine and costs which total $16.30, he will have to serve out the penalty at the rate of $1.50 a day, which will mean an additional 11 days in jail.

HELD TO JURY IN HARNESS THEFT

Jesse Snyder, 44, of Shiloh, was held to the county grand jury under $1,000 bond after he pleaded guilty in municipal court to a charge of grand larceny in the theft of harness valued at $45.

Arrested by Sheriff E. P. Long last Wednesday, Snyder admitted breaking into a barn on the R. A. McBride farm near Shiloh and taking the harness. The harness, stolen Feb. 11, was recovered by Long near Attica after Snyder revealed where he had sold it.

Town Rules Silver Dollars Only Legal Tender.

LANDER, Wyo. — (INS) — You can't spend $1 bills in Lander. The local Chamber of Commerce has decided that silver "hard money" is more typical of the West than mere paper bills and by a vote of 16 to 1 has ruled that only silver dollars are legal tender in the town and on nearby dude ranches. A Chamber spokesman announced, however, that there is no ban on $5 bills being spent in the town.

CHAPTER XI

"And this American, Don Murray, and his friend Jose Verdugo?" asked Juan, the dark-faced knife thrower. "If they should be there, eh?"

"I do not think that this American, Don Murray, will be at Rancho La Luz," Red Vasquez answered with an evil and knowing grin. "I have made up a little program for Don Murray—may he rot!—which I think he will follow. And which will interfere with any plans he may have for being at Rancho La Luz in the near future. And as for Jose . . . give him the works."

"That is good," grunted Pedro the Fat. "I have never liked that Verdugo."

"Not since he took your gun away from you and made you chew on it," jerred Avilla, he of the white scar. "Me, I have run into that hombre myself, and he is bad business."

"Wait till I catch up with him again," boasted Pedro.

"He is all yours, Pedro," said Avilla. "All yours. You can have him."

"But I think," Red Vasquez broke in, "that none of you will be troubled by Jose Verdugo either. Now, it is late . . . and I must go look at the little trap I have set. Come Gregorio." He rose. "Watch your step," he warned, at the doorway. "Otherwise—" He snapped his fingers. His men nodded. They understood. Like the snapping of fingers life might depart. Vasquez and Gregorio descended the stairs and turned toward town.

When the footsteps had died away the three men remaining in the room snatched looks at one another, drank, lighted cigarets, looked again.

Then the little knife-thrower, Juan Guadalupe, rose from his chair, went to the window and peered out.

Turning, he said, "They are gone."

And rescating himself, "I have something on my mind. You also, I think."

He paused to scrutinize the other two faces. One head nodded; Pedro the Fat merely shrugged: Enough.

"Me, I am wondering," snapped Guadalupe then, "whether somebody is kidding us. More and more I begin to think so. More and more I begin to have suspicions that—somebody is putting one over on us. Do you understand what I mean?"

Pedro the Fat grunted.

"You mean that we do all the work and—and somebody else gets most of the profits. Well, it is natural that a large part must go to El Jefe—The Chief. And that of what is left Vasquez gets the biggest share. But—what can we do? It is do as we are told—or else."

The knife-thrower shrugged in turn, and looked at the third man, Avilla, the man with the scar. But that one merely waved a brown hand and said, "Go on, hombre; I'm listening."

"It is this, then," said Guadalupe. "One-third of everything goes to The Chief. The Chief? Who is this Chief? I ask you. Have any of us ever seen him? Have any of us ever heard his name? Or where he lives? No. Never. All we know about him is that he takes one-third of all profits. Now, what I have been wondering—is there a Chief? Or is he a very nice dummy which Senor Vasquez has arranged to enable him to crack the whip over us whenever he so desires—and to get an extra third of the profits?"

"I, too," he admitted, "have wondered sometimes about that very thing. I suppose—we could really find out—if we wanted to. Personally, I think it is time we did. Because our jobs are getting more and more dangerous. Vasquez is becoming bolder and bolder—or, perhaps, crazier and crazier. He cares little any more who he kills."

"But," Pedro the Fat broke in. "But—he has no fear because, as he says The Chief will protect him, and us, in all things. Which looks as if there were really a Chief, as he claims."

"Not necessarily, hombre," Guadalupe replied. "Not necessarily I will tell you this, which you may not know. I am quite sure you don't. Both the father and grandfather of Vasquez died in a madhouse. The father after he had killed three men and a woman without reason. Perhaps, then, Vasquez deludes himself as to the existence of a Chief. Perhaps he merely deludes us—to his own profit. Nevertheless, I think, for myself, that I wish to discover the truth. How about you?"

"It would be wise, I think," assented Avilla. "No use getting hanged or shot for one dollar, if we can get two. But . . . monkeying with Red Vasquez, we may get shot for nothing. So let us be cautious. Cautious as the devil."

"And you, Pedro?" questioned Guadalupe.

"Me? Oh, I agree that we should be cautious. Much more cautious than the devil. I am afraid of Vasquez. I would much rather live for one dollar than get killed for two. But—but of course. . . . If what you suspect. . . . Well, let us try to discover, cautiously, what contact Vasquez has with any one who might be The Chief."

There was a step upon the stair and all fell silent.

A knock at the door.

"Oh, a thousand pardons, senores," he said, with a hiccough. "I thought—thought this was a—hotel. Please excuse me, gentlemen. I—I see—hic! I was—mistaken. I will go away."

He turned toward the stairway, and Guadalupe watched him. As he stumbled down the stairs the knife-thrower returned his knife to his pocket, shrugged and reentered the room.

"Drunk," he said. "Marihuana to boot." He yawned. "I think I shall go to the Porfirio Diaz; there is a new girl dancing there, they say. Want to go?"

"I'll go," replied Avilla. "Vamonos."

They went out, leaving Pedro the Fat dozing over his drinks and muttering:

"But we must be cautious. Cautious as the devil. Red Vasquez is no man to monkey with. Did he not once beat me until I was nineteenths dead?"

Dolores and Carmen were singing and dancing when Murray and Jose entered the cafe.

It was fairly well filled, perhaps because of the announcement at the entrance that "the famous dancer, La Espanola, will appear here tonight—one evening only."

No one seemed to pay any attention to their arrival, and they seated themselves at a small table not far from the doorway, against the wall. A waiter soon came to take their order.

As he departed, they watched him.

"He ees the one who weel tell them we are here, I betcha," commented Jose. "See, Don Murray. He goes not straight to thee bar. He goes around. He weel speak to somebody, I theenk."

And surely enough, the waiter paused at a table where two men sat, wiped off the table with his cloth, appeared to listen to an order, spoke, and proceeded on his way.

"He has told them we are here," said Jose. But if this was the case, the two men gave no indication of it; merely proceeded with their drinking and smoking and listening to the two girls singing.

"Do you know who they are?" asked Murray.

"I do not know the one with hees back to us," replied Jose. "But thees other one, I theenk, is one feller called Gregorio. I theenk he ees friend to Red Vasquez all right. We will watch them mos' carefulee, Don Murray. And eef they get funnee, we weel shoot the holee hell out of them, w'at?"

"Easy, Jose — easy," warned Murray. "Let us see what the girls will do when they have finished their song."

Murray was expectant. He felt that in some way, if a trap had been laid for him, the girls would be used in it. Probably as bait. As an excuse for trouble.

"If they—either one of them—come to this table," he warned Jose, "be careful. Very careful. Don't forget the man Red Vasquez shot the other night."

"Oh, I weel be careful, Don Murray. I am veree careful man. I shall have my gun ready. I weel guard your back and you weel guard mine, huh?"

But the two girls remained on the platform only long enough to acknowledge the applause, to look slowly over the audience as though seeking some one, and then retired to their dressing room in the rear.

"They weel be back soon, I theenk," said Jose. "And then . . ."

An announcer arose and called for silence.

"We have a great pleasure tonight," he said . . . and proceeded to tell of "La Espanola," the famous dancer, who had kindly consented to entertain them for one evening only.

Amidst hearty applause La Espanola appeared on the platform smiling, bowing; a small, dark flashing-eyed girl in a swirling green dress, pink stockings and slippers, a high comb in her hair. Almost instantly she swung into a startling dance in which the silken green skirts rose higher and higher as she whirled, until she seemed a mermaid swimming in a turquoise sea.

"That, she ees pretty damn good, w'at?" said Jose. "I theenk—"

But what Jose thought was never expressed.

RELIEF COSTS FOR FEBRUARY TOTAL $23,790

Expenditures Largest Since County Took Over Problem; 1,236 Families Aided.

Richland county spent $23,790 for relief last month, helping to provide food, clothing and fuel for 1,236 families and 240 single persons, according to the monthly report which had been submitted to county commissioners today by Earl A. Nist, county relief director.

The expenditures, greatest for any month since the county took over relief administration, had been estimated at nearly $25,000 at the county auditor's office

Less than one-tenth of the total cost was for admnistration, according to Nist, who listed salaries of workers and other administration bills at $1,915

More than half the relief expense, or $14,215, furnished help for 1,028 cases in Mansfield Madison township, with 284 cases listed, received $6,568, and Shelby got $1,090 for its 64 relief families.

Increase of $4,000.

The February relief cost represented an increase of more than $4,000 over the January bills which will be paid this week with funds transferred from the county's relief bond retirement fund.

During February, the county relief administration received 434 new applications for direct relief, and 368 of the applicants received help.

Relief officials certified the names of 327 applicants to the WPA office, and the certifications are now awaiting assignment to federal works projects in the county

The January relief accounts, which had been approved today by C. M. Dawson, state relief investigator, were in "good condition," Dawson said.

Although he described the county relief set-up as "a mix-up" last week, Dawson pointed out the same conditions existed in other counties and blamed the situation on the uncertainty of the entire relief program in the state He said he had no criticism to make of the relief set-up here or its efficiency.

The relief load is greater here than in other counties in north-central Ohio, because of the effect the business recession has had on the county's industries, Dawson added.

The governor charged that Sparks was a Republican "political appointment" under Gov. M. Y Cooper and that he "took refuge" under civil service. He said Sparks held his position of attack upon the administration" trations "in spite of the fact that he is known as a partisan Republican."

Gov. Davey accused Sparks of choosing a "subterranean method of attack upon the administration" and of failing to bring a complaint directly to the governor's office.

"If he had complained to the director or other officials and they failed to act and if he had brought his complaint to the governor's office and we failed to act, he would then have been justified in going to the newspapers or following any other course which he chose,' the governor stated.

Due to the additional cost of the special awards, it has been necessary to increase the budget for the Relays, Dr. W. E. Wygant, chairman of the Citizens' committee, which is assisting Harry E. Mehock, of Mansfield high school, founder and director of the carnival, stated.

Expenses will also be increased this year to pay officials. This year will mark the first time that paid officials will be used. Recognized and expert track officials of Ohio colleges will be secured to conduct the meet

Committee workers include Roy McGinty, W. C. Mead, C. C. Beelman, Richard Fishback, Paul Williams, Carleton Fernyak, Harold W. Arlin, Rev. When does the world get a breathing spell?

The greatest handicap of free government continues to be its bloc-heads.

After "Snow White."

THE PEOPLE who are clamoring to have the Seven Dwarfs made permanent actors in the Disney short cartoons are moved by pleasure, affection and appreciation, but not by judgment. Walt Disney is to be congratulated on his decision not to star those delightful little creatures again. A statement from his studio explains that the dwarfs were created expressly and exclusively for the "Snow White" picture. "They will not fit any other story. Of course there is no sequel to 'Snow White'."

This is not to disagree with the clamorers about the charms of Doc, Dopey, Grumpy, Sneezy, Happy, Bashful and Sleepy. In heart-warming and entertaining qualities they are all that their most devoted admirers claim. But why take them out of their setting? Why assume that the inventive genius of Mr. Disney and his staff is now exhausted and must merely repeat these characters over and over? Why ignore the fact that the beauty and dramatic qualities of "Snow White" reveal limitless possibilities ahead?

There is a vast mine of fairy tales, folk lore, fiction and sheer imagination which the Disney artists may now dig into with great benefit to the movie-going public, both juvenile and adult. "Snow White" suggests that it would even be safe to trust Mr. Disney with The Arabian Nights.

Latin-English.

THE American public is getting self-conscious about its Latin words and there is much confusion. Here are some familiar examples.

"Datum" means "something given." This singular form is seldom used, but its plural form "data" is probably used a great deal too much, in the sense of "information" or "facts." And it is often used ungrammatically, as it it were singular. The correct form is "this datum" or "these data." Any doubt about the matter can be dodged by avoiding the word altogether.

There is similar trouble with "insignia" meaning "sign" or badge." It is a plural form, so correctness requires "these insignia" or "insignia are." The awkwardness here, too, is easily avoided by using an English equivalent.

Then there is "medium" meaning "middle" or "means" and now widely used in the phrase "advertising medium." Many careful people seem to think they must say "media" for the plural. It is accurate enough, but stilted, and sounds queer. There is no reason, authorities say, why we shouldn't treat "medium" as a naturalized English word, and say "mediums" in business as we have long done in spiritualism.

"Referendum" is another familiar word whose natural plural "referenda" sounds odd to anyone who hasn't studied Latin. The Latins themselves didn't use the word in our special political sense, and there is good English authority for saying "referendums" without shame.

The Scramble For Office.

CONGRESSMEN, remarks a columnist, "are dismayed to note the unusually large number of people who want their jobs this year." The coming primaries and fall elections are going to present more and livelier contests than in recent campaigns.

This means more work for the conscientious voter who must choose among the various candidates the men he wants to do the country's lawmaking for him. The ideal of the founding fathers whom we revere so much and understand so little was that the ablest citizens should be sent to the national capital to discuss the country's welfare and enact the laws necessary to promote it.

Voters, being human, do not always know what they really want or what would be best for them. If they did, there would be fewer candidates winning office by the single method of extravagant promising. But this is all in the routine of democracy, under which we believe the people get, in the long run, the sort of government they want. Mistakes made in one election may be corrected in the next.

Praise.

A PSYCHOLOGY professor recommends, as a substitute for punishment of children, "a more widespread use of praise in the interest of a more wholesome society."

The idea is doubtless sound in principle and practice. Children who are scolded or punished for their faults and not praised for their virtues always feel the injustice of it, and are likely to be embittered. If comment is to be one-sided, it is better to praise or reward good conduct and ignore bad conduct than to do the opposite.

It is much the same with animals, even though they have less sense of justice than human beings. "Give a dog a bad name," by telling him what a bad dog he is, and he droops with shame and misery. That should not often be necessary. A breeder of fine dogs says, speaking particularly of collies, although the principle probably applies to all dogs:

"Your dog usually wants to do what he thinks you want him to do, and he needs a great deal of praise.

Less Mortality.

THIS business recession has been discouraging and has brought new hardships, but has not been fatal. Indeed, fewer people than usual have been dying this winter. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company reports that the death rate for the wage-earning population in January was the lowest ever recorded among its policy-holders. The reduction among the general population of the country was so great that during the first six weeks of this year 86 large American cities had only 54,514 deaths, against 65,052 in the same period of last year.

This is fortunate for the insurance companies as well as the public. With falling mortality rates, the companies have fewer death policies to pay off than they used to estimate. This is important at a time when their invested funds cannot earn so much as usual.

It grows clearer that government and business are in the same boat, and they'll float or sink together.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

AS I SETTLED down to read President Roosevelt's introduction to "a forthcoming history of his administration," there was a knock on the door. (We have a knocker on our door.)

I opened the door. A man entered, begging my pardon. He introduced himself as a neighbor. His own business had gone badly, he had become a salesman for a new type of electric cleaner.

He came not only to make a sale, but to tell proudly of his restart in life when everything had looked black.

He spoke for an hour, but of all he said, merely one thought remains: There always is business for a new idea.

FIGHTING PROGRESS

When the man had gone, I turned back to the Roosevelt article.

It seemed to me that the president was trying to make clear to us living close to him in this age that future ages would regard him as a man who sought to free us with new ideas. But that the diehards fought fearful battles to obstruct all progress—because they looked only to the past.

There seems little doubt that this is what the president feels in his innermost being.

His "history" is an argument, a plea. Leaders cannot possibly lead otherwise. They, like the electric cleaner salesman, must sell their ideas to a skeptical populace.

President Roosevelt, in his "sales talk," says many splendid things. Perhaps no other politician in America —or in the entire world—could say them so well.

But he is not writing history. He is inditing his political theology, as Hitler (of opposite political faith) wrote "Mein Kampf" ("My Battle").

HISTORY TO COME

Historians of the future—the Charles A. Beards ("The Rise of American Civilization)" of the years to come—will write the history of this era.

They will have the true perspective. And they will write with fine distinction, with measured beat, with balanced appraisal.

And I have a peculiar idea: They will write that President Roosevelt, bold as he was, wavered in the crucial moments, and failed to bring the reforms in the measure he believed. Magnificent in ideas and in expression, bringing hope to millions, he failed at achievement in much that he undertook.

Yet—the historians may continue—he was superior to and beyond any other politician of his age. He was a leader who definitely destroyed the fictions of reaction. He quickened the tide of progress—so much so that when he tried to recall the spirits he had freed, he could not do so.

In a period of world evolution, his name will remain outstanding as one who sensed the changing tides, and who at first rode them. Then, like a confused mariner, he urged wind and tide to cease—for he was weary of the storm, and there were few aboard his ship he could trust. Many were ready to stab him in the back—especially as the second period of his unusual voyage began to draw to a close.

WORDS TO REMEMBER

The president speaks stirring words in his "history" of the aims of the New Deal. Men will repeat them in the future.

"Consistently I have sought to maintain a comprehensive and efficient functioning of the representative form of democratic government in its modern sense. Consistently I have sought through that form of government to help our people to gain a larger social justice." . . .

The New Deal was fundamentally intended as a modern expression of ideals set forth 150 years ago in the Preamble of the Constitution of the United States—'a more perfect union, justice, domestic tranquility, the common defense, the general welfare and the blessings of liberty to ourselves and posterity.' . . . But we were not to be content with merely hoping for these ideals. We were to use the instrumentalities and powers of government actively to fight for them." . . .

"We were determined to help all that needed help for recovery; we were equally determined to reform where reform was necessary to insure permanence in recovery." . .

" . . . the New Deal in action—government acting to bring about not only immediate recovery, but its long-range objectives in reform. For underlying all of the immediately effective provisions of these agencies under them, was the ever-directing purpose of permanence of objectives. We knew that a leaderless system of economy had produced and would again produce economic and social disaster. . . ."

"The task of the succeeding years, and the task of today, is to see to it that our democracy is kept equipped with the necessary power and machinery to keep pace with quick social, economic and scientific changes which have taken place in recent years and which will continue to occur in the years to come."

Yes, "President Roosevelt's Own Story of the New Deal" in Liberty Magazine (from which we have just quoted) is worth every citizen's attention.

OLD (UN)RELIABLE!

Young America Asks---

What's the Outlook for Youth Today?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE'S no more common hallucination amongst all Young Americans, nor any more popular alibi for certain ones, than the belief that MOM N' DAD HAD IT EASY WHEN THEY WERE KIDS.

Generally speaking, I'm 100 per cent for Young America's notions. But in this particular case, I'm going to quit voting with the youngsters and tell them some plain facts.

We had it easy? Go skin a grape! The young people of 1880 and '90 faced just as many handicaps as you do today—and plenty that would have given even the toughest of you the Screaming Meanies. We accepted as commonplace procedure hardships and depriyations, meanness and monotony which would give a lot of you the six weeks hiccoughs . . . baby lambs! Poor and burdened, angry and discouraged as you may be, you still have more shining opportunities in one day than we had in a year.

And don't kid yourself that we didn't want something better. We did! Moreover, there were plenty of Gay Goings' On, even then, and it was just as hard for us to watch the antics of the Privileged Few as it is for you today.

BUT WE TOOK IT WITHOUT WHINING . . . AS OUR FATHERS HAD TAKEN IT BEFORE US. FOR THAT WAS THE AMERICAN CODE. Which it wouldn't hurt a few of you to recall. Not that you aren't—as I've always maintained — the swellest young gang that ever came down the pike. But some of you certainly do bruise easy—and bleat even easier.

After that blast we'll proceed with the following sample from Jerry Sullivan, of Chicago, Ill., who's all fussed up because I don't understand his generation.

"Dear Elsie Robinson—

"You deplore 'lack of feeling,' but did it ever occur to you that under our brazen surface we might be just lonely, heartbroken children? We've been drilled to 'poker face'—and we have to, to hide our desperation.

"Look at our lives. Such lofty ideals in childhood days! Then, inevitably, the crash with the cruel, greedy commercialism of the world and an unending program of work, work, work. No wonder we crave excitement to cover the bitterness and monotony of our lot and satisfy the youth that is pulsing in our veins. What do you know of such lives? You older people had it easy in a friendly world. What have we to look forward to, trapped in this machine age?

"Jerry Sullivan—age 21
"21 S. Wabash Ave.,
"Chicago, Ill."
($10 prize winner)

You have exactly as much "to look forward to" as you're willing to sweat for, my lad. And that's all you deserve. Which was as true in our day as in yours. There was as much cruelty and greediness in 1883 as there is in 1938, and as much bitter disillusionment. And there was only one cure for it then, as there is now. Which was?

FOR LADS LIKE YOU TO WIPE YOUR CHINS, DOUBLE YOUR FISTS AND GET UP AND FIGHT LIKE THE DEVIL FOR A CLEANER, KINDER, FAIRER CIVILIZATION. So chew that over son. And, in the meantime, here's a ten-spot and a hand-clasp — and for Pete's sake, stop making a scenario of yourself.

And now two short but plenty snappy suggestions from a couple of Seventeen-Year-Olds. First—Caroline Kempf, also from Chicago. Putting it up to Young America, straight—

"WHAT ARE WE YOUNG AMERICANS GOING TO DO ABOUT OUR NATIONAL DEBT?"

"We may not be able to vote, but we certainly can read and think and, when the time comes, be ready to act. America is hopelessly in debt — yet we're borrowing more money! Piling debt upon debt! Who's to pay for it all? WE — THE YOUTH OF TODAY! We'll have to spend our lives toiling to repay these debts which are being heaped up so nonchalantly — and ruthlessly! Our lives are being mortgaged for something in which we had no hand. WE MUST STOP IT, YOUNG AMERICA! BUT HOW?

"Caroline Kempf—age 17
"6004 N. Monitor Ave.,
"Chicago, Ill."
($10 prize winner)

No more vital or intelligent letter than that ever entered this column, little girl. Keep it up! And now here's Frank Capone, of Baltimore, Md., . . . with a serious earful.

"MACHINES ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR OUR UNEMPLOYMENT," says Frank. "The machinery of today is not only taking our jobs but it is making us lazy, robbing us of initiative. Push buttons have replaced skilled hands. If we junked most of our machines and brought the skilled hands back, America would soon be a different place . . . busy, proud, contented."

"Frank Capone—age 17
"713 McCabe Ave.,
"Baltimore, Md."
($5 prize winner)

I wonder if it would. Do YOU think that's the cure for America's unemployment tragedy? Let's hear!

War Bill Draws Fire and Support

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Supporters of the Sheppard-Hill-May war bill, now the subject of hot contention in congress, are not necessarily (not all of them) militarists.

The proposed measure is the one designed to give dictatorial power to the president in the event of a conflict involving the United States, including military conscription betwen the ages of 21 and 31, strict regulation of labor, and a taxation system shaped to limit profits to a very moderate maximum.

Militarists (no one admits that he is a militarist, but undoubtedly there are some) favor the plan because they believe it would increase Uncle Sam's war-time efficiency. However, there unquestionably are others who honestly are of the opinion that the threat of such a regime would so alarm the country as to make the war idea unpopular in America.

OPPOSED TO IT

To judge from the flood of correspondence received, relative to the scheme, by senators and representatives:

Big business is against the bill. It may not be bellicose, but, if we do have trouble, it does not want to have its profits restricted. Farmers, too, evidently are against the law. Agriculture thrives in wartime. Not that it desires war. Still, if it must be, the soil's tillers feel that they should be allowed to make as much money as possible out of it; not have crop prices curtailed.

Labor opposes the bill. Naturally it does not favor the notion of having its wages kept down at the very time when normally they should be skyrocketing. It seems in the bill Fascistic rule by a military group.

Peace societies, as might be expected, are adverse.

Civil liberties organizations likewise are adverse. They object to a dictatorship on general principles. Furthermore they fear that a temporary dictatorship would be likely to become permanent.

MANY FOR IT

Nevertheless, strange to say, the volume of congressional letters and telegrams (there's a flood of them) on the Sheppard-Hill-May bill's side, appreciably is greater than on the opposite side.

Why?

Well, as I see it, our Legionnaires made less than nothing out of the last war. They were conscripted and stay-at homes raked in the "gravy." They propose to see that, the next time, home-staying business, labor and agriculture shall be as much restricted as they were.

* * *

Illustratively:

Across the street from my house lives a Legionnaire who was chewed up in the tank service. He has had his bonus, which he quickly lost by bad management—but harmless bad management. He is not disabled enough to be completely disabled. He is only disabled enough to be useless for practical industrial purposes.

His belief is that the dictatorship which originally grabbed him ought to be permanent enough to take care of him today.

He argues for a PERMANENT dictatorship.

POPULAR VOTE?

Folk, to be sure, should recognize that they must not be yanked into a war needlessly, as into the last one.

Should a popular vote be required, to settle such questions?

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—March 7—There is a phase of life in Hollywood covered by a great, superstitious taboo which is, nevertheless, one of the most interesting perculiarities of a strange community. I refer to the part which journalism plays in the moving picture business and to the ethics of this journalism, which are weird by comparison with the standard rules, as old-line newspapermen learned them.

For many years the actors, more especially the women stars, and the producers and publicity departments have stood in awe of Miss Luella O. Parsons, the moving picture columnist of Mr. Hearst's newspapers. This prestige appears to be diminishing now, with the consolidation and elimination of some of Mr. Hearst's papers and the narrowing of his interests in other fields.

Pegler

Miss Parsons is an intimate friend of Miss Marion Davies and has often been a guest at the vast Hearst principality of San Simeon, some distance up the coast, and in the days of Mr. Hearst's greatest influence this association created in the minds of the moving picture people a desire to win her favor.

HER INFLUENCE EXAGGERATED.

That Miss Parsons herself has ever encouraged this belief is not apparent, for she regards herself as a reporter and not as the arbiter of careers which the profession has deemed her to be. That is all in their imagination.

The extent and force of her influence would seem to be vastly exaggerated, for there are dozens of other Hollywood columnists and commentators, and the judgment of a Hearst expert in a New York paper, for example, certainly would not be final with the public there.

Miss Parsons also conducts a radio program in which the stars appear as guest artists, and served one engagement in a movie drama —common practice among the movie specialists who do not hold the rather fastidious rule of old-line journalists that a critic should have no profitable interest in the subject of his work.

Yet journalism is what publishers make it, and when Mr. Hearst produces or owns a financial interest in a moving picture, which then receives ecstatic reviews and spreads of art in his own newspapers, an example is set which justifies deviations from the old principles by those who write in his service.

LIKENED TO VAUDEVILLE ACTORS.

Most movie commentators or columnists are stagestruck or mike-struck and soon come to regard themselves as actors or radio entertainers, inevitably on terms of professional rivalry with legitimate actors and radio artists on whose work they pass judgment in print. In many cases they have used their newspaper space for coy advertisement of their own movies or radio programs.

It should be said in extenuation, however, that the most conspicuous and successful violators of the old canons are not primarily newspapermen by training or profession, but novelty men doing vaudeville acts on paper.

At present the influence conceded to Miss Parsons appears to have been topped by that which is conceded to The Hollywood Reporter, a small and strictly professional trade paper with a class circulation. This paper carries personal advertisements by actors, song writers, directors and the like, and, of course, it requires the highest integrity to treat impartially in the editorial and critical matter those who have bought space and those who have not.

Let's Look Around

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

VICKSBURG, Miss. — Whatever ideas we may have had that Mississippi classes among the "backward" states have been greatly changed in the course of a trip through the state, over a wide, well-paved new road that extends southward from the Tennessee to the Louisiana border.

A elaborate road-building program, including hard-surfaced main highways and improvement of secondary roads is a part of Mississippi's program of progress to which much attention is being paid and millions of dollars judiciously expended.

Long regarded as an almost wholly agricultural state, Mississippi has recently been going after new industries in a big way and the result is plainly evidenced in the capital city of Jackscn as well as in many of the smaller cities.

Jackson has been greatly helped by discovery of natural gas in 1930, and there are now more than fifty producing gas wells in this field.

A new state capitol, built in 1903 at a cost of a million dollars, replaces a century-old capitol building which still stands as an example of ante-bellum architecture.

MISSISSIPPI is one of the southern states that suffered greatly from the battling that occured within its borders during the Civil war, and from the aftermath of the war. It took courage and determination for the people of this state to recover from their losses and to have advanced so notably during the past several decades. This state will bear watching as an example of what can be done in the face of obstacles.

ABOUT halfway between Memphis and Jackson is the little city or Grenada, which, with 5,000 population, claims the distinction of having three newspapers—a small daily and two weeklies. A new hosiery mill is almost ready to start operations and Grenada is looking forward to an industrial boom.

ALSO at Grenada they tell of an unusual city over about fifty miles to the west—Mound Bayou—which is populated entirely by colored people and prides itself on having no jail and no major crimes in 13 years. The city and vicinity has reached a population approaching eight thousand and has the appearance of many other small southern towns, with a business street, garages, auto agencies, sawmill, gristmill, cotton gins, and a $115,000 consolidated school, with 800 pupils, 15 teachers and a Tuskegee graduate as principle.

The town was founded 50 years ago by Isaiah T. Montgomery, who had been a body servant of Jefferson Davis. Tracts of land were sold to Negroes at $8 an acre, $1 down and $1 a year. The community has now grown to 30,000 acres, largely farmed to cotton and corn.

It is said of Mound Bayou that a larger proportion of residents own their own land and that there are fewer mortgages than in the average community of mixed population in the south.

Here is an idea that might be worthy of consideration in any long-range program toward social security.

ON toward Jackson, in the county-seat town of Canton, with 5,000 population, attention was attracted to a traffic safety plan in which, through a loud speaker at the principal corner, attention of motorists was called to any infraction of traffic regulations—even to the extent of noting that license plate should be cleaned, so the number could be read.

By the way, Mississippi economizes on its license plates—using only one plate, attached to the rear of the car. Rather odd not to see a license plate on an approaching car.

ON to Vicksburg, the "Gibraltar of the Confederacy", which withstood repeated attacks by Union forces but which was finally surrendered after 47 days of siege, during which people in the beleaguered city ate mule meat and parched corn for sustenance.

Vicksburg, located on high bluffs overlooking the Mississippi river, is now a beautiful modern city, third in industrial importance in the state and a busy wholesale distributing point.

Principal attraction among tourists is the National Military park of 1322 acres, with approximately $3,000,000 in monuments and memorials representing states whose soldiers participated in the siege of Vicksburg.

In the National Cemetery, two miles north of the city, are buried 17,450 Union soldiers who lost their lives in and around Vicksburg before and during the siege. Of these 12,911 are unknown, but each grave is marked—almost endless rows of small marble squares—a continuous reminder of the awful cost of war.

AMONG those of the younger generation, even here in Mississippi, there is little of wartime bitterness remaining. The view is frequently expressed that the union of America's forces in the World war went far to heal old wounds and that the strength of all the states—north and south—is needed in solving the nation's present problems.

Have you ever heard of Natchez? It is being much mentioned down here. Let's look it up on the map.

CONGRESS O. K. ON FOUR MAJOR MEASURES SEEN

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—(INS)—Driving for early adjournment to give business a "breathing spell," congressional leaders were agreed today that the only major legislation likely to be passed would be the tax, navy, government reorganization and general relief bills.

This being an election year members already have begun making frequent trips back home to fix political fences.

While the house today resumed consideration of the tax bill the senate continued debate over the Byrnes bill to reorganize the executive branch of the government. The billion dollar armaments bill will be taken up in the house late this week when the tax measure will be taken up in the house late this week when the tax measure is passed. Long, hard fights over the tax and navy bills in the senate were predicted.

Demand Outright Repeal.

A spirited fight was certain for outright repeal of the corporate undistributed profits tax. Administration forces were struggling to retin the impost even though they have to take it in modified form as carried in the house bill.

Senate overhauling of the capital gains tax also seemed certain and a struggle was in the making to lower the income tax exemptions for married persons from $2,500 to $2,000 and for single persons from $1,000 to $800 for the latter. Leading that fight was Senator LaFollette (P) of Wisconsin, while pitted against him was Senator Borah (R) of Idaho. Borah contends persons of low income now pay a larger percentage of their earnings in taxes, hidden and direct, than do the higher-bracket taxpayers.

There was considerable doubt That the Borah-O'Mahoney industries licensing bill or any other far-reaching anti-monopoly legislation would become law at this session of congress.

The wage-hours bill was also on the doubtful list.

A Farmer's Diary

March 6.

I TRAVELED over a wide expanse of country yesterday. The weather was warm and a little hint of sunshine alternated with long an heavy showers of rain. The ditches by the roadside were filled with yellow, muddy water; the streams became roily, roaring torrents, raving over rocks and fallen trees. Along the higher banks, streams of liquid clay would fill the ditch and flow across the roads. The marshes and the lowlands soon became vast lakes, with islands of higher ground dotted here and there.

I thought I might find some migratory water fowl, but instead I heard and saw a killdee, our one familiar plover, rise and fly in rapid, graceful movements, showing its creamy under wing and side—like gulls on larger inland waters.

Suddenly, like some rare and unexpected thing, the sun shone full, from a rift in the clouds. Rain was falling in the east, and in firm assurance, I looked for that bow of promise God gave Brother Noah. I saw it stretched high across the sky like a brilliant colored curtain. A second bow, of lighter shade, hung parallel with inverted colors. Surely gold and many other precious things were dropped at this rainbow's end.

As I stood there, admiring all the wonders of this holy scene, I heard the liquid, flute-like notes of a meadow lark—ethereal singer of the earth and sky.

"Oh listen! for the vale profound

CLASS TO GIVE ANNUAL PLAY

'Lady of Letters' to Be Given March 18 and 19; Cast of Characters Named.

GALION—Rehearsals are now going forward in earnest for the annual junior class play at Senior high school. The play, "Lady of Letters," will be given next Thursday and Friday nights, March 17 and 18, and is directed by Hilda Schooley of the high school faculty.

With the exception of several characters, two entirely different casts will present the production on the respective nights. This has been arranged so that more talent will be given a part in the play.

The characters will be portrayed as follows: Adelaide Willifer, played by Mary Frances Fulton and Billie Ibach; Gilbert, Richard Rose; Richard Mays, Mart Helfrich, jr., and Herman Guffey; Susie Willifer, Margaret Resch and Elaine Mittman; Mrs. Cornelia Lawrence, Thyra Schmauch and Jane Tuilis; Mrs. McDonald, Jeanette Nagelbush and Joan Campbell; Mrs. Pace, Jane Weithoff and LaVern Roesch; Dr. Nuberry, Carl Crissinger; Mr. Creetmore, Michael Eckstein; Warren Ainsley, Frank Johnson; Winifred Shaw, Jean Ailes and Alice Benbow.

PRESENT PLAY

SAVANNAH—A one-act play entitled "One Happy Family" was presented Friday evening in the Savannah town hall by members of the Ashland college Footlighters' club. The play was written by David Lloyd, college freshman from Warsaw, Ind.

Under the direction of Miss Thelma Slack, a cast consisting of father, Robert Hulit of Ashland; mother, Louise Culbertson of Ashland; daughter Jane, Jean Lett of Ashland, and son Bill, Leonard Carlisle of Shelby, presented the cleverly arranged production.

Justice of Peace 25 Years, Never Had Crime Case

ASHLAND — The unique distinction of never having had a criminal case in all the 25 years that he has been a justice of the peace, goes to J. C. Pifer, 72, Mifflin township farmer.

Justice Pifer, a native of the township, who has never lived outside of it, first became a magistrate in 1912, and has been re-elected every term without any opposition.

Believing in using the law only as a last result, Justice Pifer who at best has only eight or ten cases a year, says that whenever possible, he has the case settled out of court.

A graduate of the Ashland common school system, Justice Pifer attended Ashland college for two terms back when the school was not more than a few years old, and after that was in the lumber business for 15 years before turning to farming

ATTEND COUNTY EPWORTH MEET

SHELBY—Approximately 50 delegates were present at the Richland county Epworth league institute held here Saturday at the First Methodist church. Six leagues sent delegates.

Speakers included Dr. H. M. Peterson of Mansfield, superintendent of the Mansfield district; Rev. H. T. Wintermute of Butler, district president and Rev. Arthur Hoveland of Delaware, who led the afternoon session.

Rev. R. A. Hall of Ontario, Rev. O. L. Ashburn of Pavonia and Rev. W. W. Ralph of Shelby, led the discussion groups. A short business session was held in charge of Rev. Hall, when plans were discussed on the Million Unit Fellowship movement in the county.

At noon a luncheon was served by the mothers of the Shelby leaguers. Delagates were present from First and Central Methodist churches, Mansfield, Ontario, Pavonia, Butler and Shelby.

TOLD OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word was received here Saturday of the death in Cincinnati of John Hoover, original contractor for the Bucyrus Schine theater block which was started here in 1929.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeGray of this city attended funeral services in Cincinnati Sunday.

SALES LEADERS

Westinghouse Honors Their 14 Outstanding Dealers.

Fourteen Westinghouse dealers who had outstanding sales records during the past year throughout the United States were in Mansfield today as guests of Westinghoues officials here.

During a three-day stay in the city, the visitors will be shown the new 1938 line of products and will be entertained in recognition of their work last year.

The delegation, which was greeted by A. E. Allen, vice president in charge of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant, and J. W. Clark, of the organization's sales division, includes representatives from the 14 sales districts in the nation.

HEARS TALKS ON SOCIAL DISEASES

Youth Forum Subject Discussed By Physicians.

Talks by four Mansfield physicians on the subject, "Social Diseases, Syphilis and Gonorrhea," featured the weekly meeting of the Community Christian Youth Forum Sunday evening at the Park Avenue Baptist church.

At a special meeting in the afternoon for adults, Dr. Wygant was the speaker. A concert was given by the Senior high school band under the direction of J. Merton Holcombe. The devotional service was in charge of Allen Balliet and Eloise Husung.

Dr. James Anderson, professor of Bible at Wooster college, will speak at the next meeting Sunday evening at the First Presbyterian church. His subject will be, "Youth's Return to Vital Christian Faith."

RELIEF NEEDS IN RURAL AREAS SWING UPWARD

Federal Official Says Farm Sector Hit Hard by Present Business Recession.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A federal relief official told the senate unemployment committee today there had been "a deluge of applications" for rural relief since last September.

"The effects of the current business recession have by no means been confined to the cities," said Corrington Gill, assistant works progress administrator in charge of rural relief.

"Large numbers of rural families are experiencing severe privation," he said.

Gill asserted the curtailment of WPA that started last year had left many rural families a "mere pittance." He said a large number of such families and non-agricultural workers in rural areas would have to be carried on relief rolls until 1938 crops are harvested and business improves.

3,500,000 Get Help.

"At least 3,500,000 families, or more than one out of every four rural families in the United States, have received public assistance at some time during the depression," he continued.

"There is no question," he added, "that at least one-third of the rural population is ill-fed, ill-clothed, and ill-housed."

Ray Franklin, business agent for union employes of the Hormel Packing company at Austin, Minn., said annual wages, rather than an hourly or weekly wage, were approved "by 95 per cent of the workers."

Officials of the packing company explained to the committee last week their experiment with such a system.

The union agent said that work for a department was scheduled on a 48-hour basis and that frequently employes completed this work in "35 or 38 hours."

Without a strong union organization, Franklin said, employers might use "a speed up" plan to the disadvantage of workers.

HURT BY AUTO

BUCYRUS—Mrs. Harry Pleiderer, 216 West Lucas street, is recovering from injuries and shock suffered when she walked into the rear of a moving automobile driven by Albert Gerstenslager, 921 South Sandusky avenue, Saturday.

Mrs Pleiderer was treated for a lacerated left wrist following the accident which occurred at Warren and Sandusky streets.

THORNTON LAKE WEDS MISS HELEN JOHNSON

Simple Ceremony Read at Fairmount Presbyterian Church Saturday Afternoon: Couple Will Make Home In Mansfield.

AT THE Fairmount Presbyterian church, Cleveland Heights, Rev. Frank E. Ferris read the simple ceremony Saturday at 5 p. m., which united Miss Helen Roberts Johnson and Thornton Lake in marriage. Miss Johnson was given in marriage by her father, Frank D. Johnson. Mr. Lake is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lake, Cleveland Heights.

For her marriage Miss Johnson wore a three piece costume suit of rose beige wool with a fox collar. Her accessories were brown and her corsage was orchids and lilies of the valley. The couple was unattended.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Canterbury Country club for members of the families and close friends. After returning from a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Lake will be at home at 839 Maple avenue.

Miss Johnson attended Hathaway-Brown school and the University of Michigan and Mr. Lake is a graduate of Ohio State university. He is employed here at the Ohio Brass company.

Mansfield guests present for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Ott, Mr. and Mrs. M K. Liggett, William Mogg, Eugene Shoemaker and C. A. Faust.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 8.

A VERY active and interesting day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations. There may be good news, new contracts and much interesting publicity promoted by secret or tacit agreements or intrigues. An advantageous change looms. Business or property at a distance may aid in stabilizing the affairs. It would be well to be tactful and discreet with the opposite sex.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and eventful year, with much stirring in connection with publicity, advertising, hasty news or travel. New contacts are in order, and change or distant matters may prove a stabilizing factor in advancing the fortunes. Tact, even subtlety and intrigue, may prove more lucrative than impetuous and direct methods

A child born on this day may be lively, energetic, industrious and versatile, but likely to get itself into mischief or tight places by its impetuosity, recklessness and love of fun and adventure.
